Searching for Badly Needed Metal, the Germans Tried to Secure Supply by Stripping Orthodox Churches, and Enormous Crowds of Russians Fought the Invaders for Two Days of Bloody Riot.

BATTLE EXPECTED AT ANY MOMENT NOW

THOUSANDS OF VISITORS FLOCK TO DOUGLAS TO SEE THE EXPECTED SUNDAY BATTLE.

By Associated Press.

Douglas, Ariz., Oct. 30.—The arrival of Villa's 8,000 men to attack Agua Prieta is expected tonight or tomorrow. Thousands of visitors have flocked here to see what they believe will be a great Sunday fight. The little red flags, danger signals marking mine fields outside Agua Prieta, were removed today. These mines exploded both by contact and by electrical devices controlled from the garrison. The Carranza forces have three lines of trenches built according to the latest European models. Carranza scouts claim that the Villa soldiers are hardly able to fight on account of the hardships of the march and that the women and children camp followers are in a pitiable condition.

Two troops of United States cavalry and a machine gun platoon were placed on guard today at Slaughter's ranch across the border from Villa's advance guard of 500 men. Calles reported that one of his advance guards killed 20 Villa advance guardmen yesterday and captured 14.

Mexican Herald Suppressed.

Galveston, Texas, Oct. 30.—It is reported here by Carranza representatives that the Carranza authorities in Mexico City have suppressed the Mexican Herald of Mexico City as an antagonistic publication.

Mexicans Working on Road.

San Angelo, Texas, Oct. 30.—Four Mexican arrested on the Wilson farm Wednesday charged with threatening revolution were fined $100 each. They are working on the county roads to pay the fine.

OPEN SIX MONTHS REVIVAL AT CHICAGO.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—The old-time revival, which is to last six months, and is aimed to reform the wayward, will get under way tomorrow, with Mayor Thompson delivering the opening address. It will be a Moody revival, and Rev. Paul Rader and Rev. E. Y. Woolley of Moody Church will lead the work. A big tabernacle has been constructed, seating five thousand.

EXPECT NEWFOUNDLAND WILL GO DRY.

St. John's, Newfoundland, Oct. 30.—Prohibition will be submitted to popular vote in Newfoundland next month, and it is expected that the measure will be adopted by a big majority. At present St. John's is the only place on the island where liquor can be legally sold, and the majority in its favor has been steadily dwindling. The prohibition law, if adopted, will go into effect next July.

BIG UNDER-SEA BOAT READY FOR TESTS.

Boston, Oct. 30.—The new United States submarine M-1, which, when added to the navy, will be the largest undersea vessel in the service, will be ready for the navy trial board tests next week. The M-1 has received her finishing touches at Quincy. In her preliminary trials, the new submarine showed unusual efficiency of its engines. It is in the engines that the Navy Department seeks to improve the undersea boats. If the M-1 is accepted, it will go into commission and will probably join the Atlantic fleet until the larger sea-going submarines are ready. Then the M-1 will undoubtedly be assigned to coast defense service.

By Associated Press.

London, Oct. 30.—A British mine sweeper was sunk and 100 men lost in a collision with another British ship at the Dardanelles. Petrograd reports that the Germans, needing metal, tried to strip the orthodox churches in Vilna. Enormous crowds of civilians fought the Germans in a two-day riot. Many soldiers and civilians were killed. The Montenegrins claim they are inflicting great losses on the Austrians.

Was Really Torpedo.

Washington, Oct. 30.—Secretary Lansing today announced that the navy department investigation indicates that the fragments of the engine of war which sank the Allan liner Hesperian was a torpedo and not a mine. Germany has persistently denied that the Hesperian was torpedoed. The result of the navy investigation will be communicated to Germany. The Hesperian sank off the Irish coast early in September.

Terrific Artillery Bombardment.

Constantinople, Oct. 30.—The Turkish war office announced last night that the allies had subjected the Turkish left wing at several points on the Gallipoli peninsula to a terrific bombardment. One thousand shells at one point caused the collapse of some of the Turkish trenches. Near Ari Burnu the bombardment continued all Thursday night, but the allied infantry attacks failed. Two monitors helped in the bombardment, but were driven away.

Schaeffer was tried recently, but the jury disagreed. He is under $15,000 bail.

CUDAHY-NIBLACK.

Chicago, Oct. 30.—Miss Helen Cudahy, a prominent Chicago society girl, will be married today to Austin H. Niblack of Lake Forest. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Cudahy. The engagement was one of the interesting announcements of the summer. The young couple first formed their deep attachment when they took part in a society entertainment last spring. Miss Cudahy is the President of the Junior League, and because of the fact that every girl who has held the office has stopped out to become a bride, their friends have dubbed it the "Matrimony League."

MAY SHIFT JERSEY STRIKE TRIALS.

Elizabeth, N. J., Oct. 30.—A hearing will be given next week on application made to the Supreme Court Circuit for a change of venue in the suits brought by twelve wounded strikers against the American Agricultural Chemical Co. for injuries received in the strike at Roosevelt, N. J., last year. It is asked by the strikers that the trials take place here instead of at New Brunswick, because of the fact that the sheriff of New Brunswick, who would draw the jury, had engaged the strike breakers who shot down the men. The hearing next week will be at Trenton.

STATE OFFERS REWARD.

Governor Ferguson has issued a proclamation offering $1,000 reward for the arrest and detention of either Aniceto Pizano or Luis de la Rosa, "and their relivity, dead or alive, to any sheriff in the state of Texas. He further promises ample and liberal reward to any Mexicans for information that will lead to the arrest, and from fees protection from violence at the hands of the Mexican bandits to any who give such information.

The time has come to use any means to secure the arrest of these two leaders of insurrection and instigators of murder and robbery. The fact that they were repeatedly seen in Mexican towns just across the border after beginning their criminal operations, and that the Mexican authorities failed to apprehend them indicates that there is a desire to aid the American officials in securing their arrest.

The amount offered as a reward may be sufficient to induce some of the followers of the two bandits leaders to betray them, and it is sufficient to induce many not connected with the raids to make diligent search for them.

If apprehended, there is little doubt that they will be convicted of the charges of murder and robbery under arms. Several of their followers have confessed after capture by the American soldiers or peace officers, and copies of their proclamation issued some weeks ago are evidence enough for any jury to convict.

That the feeling of many of the Mexicans is in favor of the bandits there can be no doubt. De la Rosa was in Reynosa for weeks and maintained his "headquarters" there, according to reliable information from that town. Still there was no attempt made to arrest him, and the people of Reynosa made no effort to have him driven from the town.

Reports from Brownsville say that a Mexican dressed in khaki, armed with a rifle and with three cartridge belts strapped about him, took post on the Mexican end of the bridge and remained there for an hour and a half, threatening the Americans at their end of the bridge, and there was no attempt made at arresting him. The only result of the report was that the Carrancista consul in Brownsville promised to investigate the matter.

The report that Brownsville was to be placed under martial law seems to have been premature, as Governor Ferguson says he has made no such request and will not until he is convinced that there is no other method of handling the situation.

There are now about 4,000 troops in the Brownsville section, and the war department states that it is not deemed advisable to send any more unless Gen. Funston should so recommend. It would seem that 4,000 soldiers should be able to handle the situation, especially if martial law should be proclaimed.

Governor Ferguson has also asked President Wilson to use his good offices with General Carranza in the suppression of lawlessness along the border on the Mexican side of the river. This may result in some good, but it is not the belief of any familiar with the situation that it will have any definite results.

Had there been any desire on the part of the Carrancista authorities to put a stop to these abuses, they would have co-operated with our troops and peace officers in such a manner that the bandits would have been captured or killed weeks ago.

The time wasted in sending troops to combat a man whom it is declared is already hopelessly defeated might have been better employed in sending a proper force to keep the border clear of the bandits.

It is apparent that the Mexican forces are a broken reed to lean upon, and that whatever is done to pacify the border will have to be done by our own troops. And it is time that some definite action were taken.

OUR COUNTRY, RIGHT OR WRONG.

Several of our contemporaries, among them the Chicago Tribune and the esteemed Houston Post, have been for some printing Stephen Decatur's immortal toast at the masthead of the editorial columns. It reads:

"Our country. In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right, but our country, right or wrong."

Now comes the information that the sentiment is unholty, even unpatriotic, and that it tends, as one noted clergyman says, "to place a geographical boundary in place of God."

The anemic idea that one must be prepared to abandon flag and country because of a personal belief that the country is wrong is not one to recommend itself to people with red blood in their veins. A man—a real man—may at times believe that his country is in the wrong, yet he would fight to the last drop of his blood for the flag that represents that country.

At the outbreak of the Civil War there were Southerners who deplored the act of secession, and who believed that the leaders of the Confederacy were wrong in declaring war against the federal government. Yet they enlisted with the forces of their respective states and fought to the bitter end for the doctrine accepted of those states.

There were men of the North who believed that the South was being oppressed because of the racial views of the abolitionists, yet they fought for the country that gave them birth, simply because they subscribed to the doctrine contained in Decatur's toast.

If there is one thing that more than others distinguishes the German people it is the patriotism that causes them to fight for their flag and their country even when they believe that they are fighting on the side of wrong and oppression.

The immortal story of Edward Everett Hale, "The Man Without a Country," quotes the famous lines of

Walter Scott, which are familiar to every school boy:

"Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said:
'This is my own, my native land?'"

And the closing lines express the feeling of every true patriot:

"If such there be, go mark him well;
For him no minstrel raptures swell,
... Unwept, unhonored and unsung."

After all, who is to judge whether one's country be right or wrong? Future ages may turn defeat into victory, the sorrow of the vanquished into the triumph of the victors. The present is often too close to be in proper focus; it needs the mellowing distance of time to bring forth the true perspective.

In the eyes of his contemporaries Gallien was wrong, yet we now know that he was right beyond all question. The Jews who demanded the death of Christ and the Romans who killed Him believed that He was wrong; the civilized world today recognizes His teachings.

The heart of the world has ever beat for one's native land. The veriest savage will fight for the country which he calls his own; the more civilized have shed oceans of blood in defense of the fatherland.

"Our country, right or wrong," may be, as some say, a pagan doctrine, but it is one that will outlast thrones and empires. The brotherhood of man recognizes no boundaries, it is true, yet without a respect for another man's fatherland one cannot be a true brother to the world.

There is nothing narrow, nothing degrading in the love of country. A true patriot is the better man, the better father and the better husband because he is the son of his country.

"Our country, right or wrong," will make better citizens than will the doctrine that humanity is superior to country.

The death of twenty-five children in a schoolhouse fire in Massachusetts brings home to us as nothing else could do that we are not so hopeless, by behind the times as some other parts of the country. And each year we are improving our school conditions.

Four Mexicans were arrested near San Angelo for plotting revolution. And still some of the people would have us believe that the trouble near Brownsville is merely the result of local conditions.

The Port Arthur News is sore because in Jefferson county the tall rickies to wag the dog, in other words, Beaumont claims credit for what Port Arthur is and does. Never mind, stump; no one who knows worries about it.

But wasn't that a hot reply that Governor Jim gave to Morris? Still, it isn't necessary to use a 42-cent machine when you're after squirrels, and the big shot tears the skin so.

The German Overseas News Agency says that Brand Whitlock claims he was misquoted in the British report of Miss Cavell's execution. But so far as we have learned there is no official report from Minister Whitlock to that effect, and our state department is probably as apt to have the straight of it as the German "news" agency.

CONTRACTORS GETTING BUSY.

Everything in Readiness to Begin Work of Construction on Laredo National Bank Immediately.

J. L. Jambers & Co., the San Antonio firm which was awarded the contract for the construction of the handsome home for the Laredo National Bank, and who have been here during the entire week, have everything now in readiness for beginning actual on the building and the foundation will probably be put down early in the coming week.

The site has been cleaned of the old buildings and some of the remaining debris which resulted from the tearing down of the structures is being removed. The contractors have already constructed their workhouse on the scene and are now rounding everything into shape for starting and pushing construction work on the fine building as soon as they can get at it.

WAS DETECTED IN THE ACT.

Young Mexican Entered Mexican Store, Got Cramps on Goods and Started to Blow When Caught.

This morning about 10 o'clock a young Mexican, a stranger in town, walked into Sierra's dry goods store in this city, scrutinized things in general until nobody was seemingly watching him. At this stage of the game he was seized with cramps in his fingers, got a deadly grip on three coats, and three vests and started to blow out the door. He wasn't voluble enough and was discerned in the act and a clerk squealed. The Mexican started on a marathon down the street.

Running to the door the clerk hailed a cop with the acclaim, "Stop that man, he's a thief." He was captured by the aforesaid cop and hauled to the police station and later to the county jail. He gave his name as Jesus Rosalendo—later he will be regulated at an examining trial.

REQUEST GRANTED RICAUT FOR PASSAGE OF OFFICERS

ALSO RESULTED IN HIM BEING INVITED TO CROSS BORDER.

Commander of the Nuevo Laredo Garrison Requested Permission for Carranza Officers to Cross.

Supplementing the item contained in the last issue of the Times to the effect that the United States military commander at this point had accorded to General Alfredo Ricaut, the military commander of Nuevo Laredo, the courtesy of the military forces here and extended him an invitation to visit Laredo at his pleasure, in civilian clothes, accompanied by whatever aides or staff officers or ladies that he may select, Colonel C. J. Crane, commander of the Ninth Infantry Camp, says he also conveyed to General Ricaut the permission of the Southern Department for the passage of three Carranza military officers through here en route to Agua Prieta, Mexico, to where a big movement of Carranza troops is now under way to combat the forces of General Pancho Villa.

Colonel Crane states that General Ricaut requested him to get a permit for the uninterrupted passage of the three Carranza officials through Texas, and it was in obedience to the request that the permission was granted. These Carranza officers go to join the Carranza troops now advancing on the stronghold of Villa in the state of Sonora and will cross the Mexican border line probably near Nogales, Arizona.

As to the invitation to General Ricaut to visit Laredo in civilian clothes at his pleasure, this would indicate that an order recently issued prohibiting Mexican military officers from crossing the boundary line in whatever manner has been rescinded, although the abrogation of this order does not, so far as is known, relate in any way to the ban placed on American officers or soldiers crossing to the Mexican side. This prohibitive order has been in effect for over two years now and will probably be maintained until absolute guarantees of peace are established in Mexico.

PROTECTION AND PATRIOTISM.

Editor Laredo Times:
Will you permit a reply to your editorial in your issue of October 25th, 1915, headed "Unfair Competition?"

It should be kept in mind that the United States was the first government to promulgate the theory of a "protective" tariff; that is to say, levying and requiring the collection of a tax on all imported manufactures where such wares were sold in competition with the same manufactured wares in the United States. The import duties, or tax, collected from us by foreign governments where we were selling to their people in competition to their wares were first purely retaliatory, but were afterwards adjusted to revenue purposes.

In the start our protective tariff, or tax, was an unselfish act of patriotism by which we were seeking to benefit our "infant industries." But the tariff discrimination was soon discovered to be a means of yielding to these "infants" a profit about equal to the rate of the tax; or, to illustrate more plainly, if the tax amounted to forty per cent of the value of the imported wares, then our home manufacturers could add that price to their ordinary profit on an open home market. The result has been such enormous profits.

Both pieces of machinery are steam propelled. One is a latest pattern cement mixer and engine, while the other is a steam-driven hoisting apparatus for use in carrying cement and mortar and mixed concrete to any place from the lower floor up. With these machines on hand the work on the building will be expedited from the beginning.

Now the answer to all "protective" argument is one simple question: Who pays the tax?

I presume no intelligent thinker will deny the fact that the consumer, the man or woman who wears out the clothing, or the shoes, or whatever the imported article is, is the one upon whom the tax ultimately falls. This being so, isn't it the necessary result that those who want this species of protection want to use the power of government to force their fellow citizens to give them a profit in their business?

If so, what becomes of patriotism, a love of country willing to endure all things—even the loss of life itself—for the good of all?

"Patriotic love of one's country, and the desire to use the power of its government for its selfish profit, cannot exist in the same individual at the same time, for 'no man can serve two masters.'"

The effort to so use our government for selfish profit at the expense of the rest of our fellow citizens has made of us a money-loving, hard hearted, cruel and selfish people, that is to say, those of us who have succeeded in perverting their government. Business has no patriotism and never has had in the world's history, because business is the personification of self-interest, the antithesis to the doctrine of "the greatest good to the greatest number."

If the laboring man is going to vote for "protection" in order that he may take higher wages out of the pockets of his fellow citizens, then, too, will his patriotism also become questionable. The laboring men of this country spend 900 million dollars a year for intoxicating liquors. If they would put that tidy little sum in co-operative business instead of saloons, they need never fear "pauper labor" from anywhere.

PIEDRAS PINTAS OIL FIELD HAS ANOTHER BIG COMPANY

WHICH WILL EXPLORE OIL RESOURCES OF THAT SECTION.

Representatives of Noleida Oil Development Co. in Laredo to Interest Local People in the Field.

Lloyd R. Clarkson and V. E. Carneal of Corpus Christi, stockholders and directors of the Noleida Oil Development Co., which is exploring the Piedras Pintas oil field in Duval county, arrived in Laredo this morning in their automobile from the oil field on the Texas-Mexican road and will spend several days here on business in connection with the Piedras Pintas field.

Mr. Clarkson was one of the men interested in the company which recently brought in the big casing in the White Point field near Corpus Christi, and he is of the belief that a great oil field will yet be developed there and at Piedras Pintas. Geologists who have visited the latter field recently and made investigations, pronounced it most promising for bringing in a gusher with a capacity of from 10,000 to 15,000 barrels of oil daily, and to develop the resources of the field the Noleida Oil Development Co. has been organized and incorporated with a capital stock of $75,000.

Shares are now being sold in the company represented by Messrs. Clarkson and Carneal and it is expected to have everything in readiness to begin work of drilling at Piedras Pintas not later than December 1.

Numerous Laredo parties hold stock in the oil fields at Taylor and White Point, while some are also interested in the San Antonio field, but the gentlemen here now in the interest of the Noleida company want to get Laredo people interested in a field within 100 miles of this city—at Piedras Pintas.

ST. LOUIS PLANS GRAND OPERA HOUSE.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 29.—An opera house architecturally the finest in the United States is to be built by public spirited St. Louisans. For several years the plans have been discussed and the project has been gaining ground. Recently the committee applied for incorporation of the Metropolitan Grand Opera House Company of St. Louis, and subscriptions in large amounts have been received. The backers of the venture aim to encourage and promote musical, dramatic and kindred arts, and to develop the public taste for opera and the better theatricals.

A CLEVER SATIRE.

The editorial writer on the Chicago Tribune is a master of satire. One of his latest critiques is as follows:

In one respect President Wilson's Mexican triumph presents something for the eye to see, even if the rest be only for the imagination to conceive. By the recognition of V. Carranza, First Chief, there is established in Mexico an agency for the receipt of notes, representations, and other communications in which the United States may desire to express its pleasure or pain.

Diplomacy is in a hole when it cannot find a recognized authority with which to deal. This was not the only hole our Mexican diplomacy was in, although it may be the only one out of which it has crawled. We now have some one with whom to talk.

And V. Carranza loves to talk. He also loves to write. His English brain and Latin soul, with whiskers, completely fills the ink well of authority. He can almost be imagined writing out of it like a Sponcorian Neptune, with his whiskers lashed in writing fluid.

When we ask the newly recognized first chief why it continues to be the pleasure of the Mexicans, so long benefited by a passionate love of humanity, to shoot our soldiers, who never did anybody any harm, we'll at least get some letters.

"Yours received and contents noted. In reply would say that the soldiers referred to were offensive to a number of citizens of this republic, who had crossed the international boundary line for some tall shooting. The sergeant mentioned did not have his legkings on. It was reported that the corporal snored. The privates, I regret to say, were the innocent victims of the temperament of our citizens. They are so volatile. Permit me to suggest that if the United States government would see the wisdom of withdrawing both soldiers and citizens from Texas much would be done towards establishing the glorious and amiable relations which should exist between the two great republics of the boundlessly endowed North American continent. I kiss your hand. Yours for liberty, humanity, and equality."

Carranza is bound to be a great comfort as a letter writer. He will help us compose ourselves. While contemplating this prospect with expectation we also note with pleasure that the United States has offered the Mexican government another testimony of its friendliness by ordering the Twenty-eighth infantry from Galveston to a place nearer the scenes of shooting on the border.

The Mexicans could hardly be expected to go to Galveston to get the troops.

COMPULSORY GARDENS TO FIGHT PELLAGRA.

Jackon, Miss., Oct. 29.—The alarming spread of pellagra in this state has led to the suggestion that compulsory operation of private vegetable gardens is the most logical method of stemming the tide. The greatest spread of the disease was among the negroes of the delta, where their rations consist chiefly of cornbread, and fat meat. It is the lack of fresh vegetables in the diet that throws the negroes into the disease, say the experts. The proposal of compulsory vegetable raising is advocated by many prominent physicians and leading men throughout the state. It may lead to a new system of farming on the big plantations, requiring every tenant to cultivate one acre of garden for his own family.

An investigation by the leading medical society of the state reveals the fact that there are 11,000 cases in this state, that 1192 deaths from the disease were reported last year, and the spread of pellagra was increasing at a terrific rate. Last year 256 whites were included in the total deaths, and in the year previous there were 209 deaths of whites in this state from pellagra, out of a total of 795.

Just what to do with the cases now existing is one of the greatest problems that faces the people of Mississippi. Hospitals would cost millions, therefore the problem has been put up to each county to care for its own cases. Accommodations are furnished on the county farms for many of the afflicted. The change of diet, with the addition of vegetables, begins at once to make new men out of them.

That diet is the cause of the disease, and therefore its cure, is the attitude taken by the Mississippi medical men. The rapid spread of the loathsome disease is now recognized by the state and local authorities, and it is expected that radical action will be taken to compel families to protect themselves by eating proper food.

PLAYING SAFE.

One of Australia's best landscape painters was out with his bag of tricks near Daylesford recently. He had pitched in front of an old two-roomed, wattle-and-dab hut, softened with a crimson-flowered creeper, which he thought would make an excellent sketch. While he was working at tall, hairy man came out of the hut and regarded him with some misgiving.

The hut dweller approached. "Watcher don't misster?" he asked. "I'm painting your picturesque dwelling," said Patterson.

The hut dweller regarded Patterson dubiously for a minute, then went indoors. Presently he appeared with his wife, and the two advanced toward the artist. "Mind yeh," said the man, pointing to the painter, "I've got me witness—you're doing this at your own expense."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THIS IS MY 75th BIRTHDAY

HON. JOSEPH WILSON FIFER.

Hon. Joseph Wilson Fifer, former Governor of Illinois, and famous Civil War veteran, is 75 years old today. "Private Joe" Fifer, as he was known throughout the middle West in the eighties, began life as a bricklayer. It was after he had served through the Civil War and had saved $150 of his hard-earned army pay to gain an education, that he began to equip himself to be a lawyer. He was badly wounded in the war, a bullet traveling through his body. His recovery astonished the surgeons, and he shouldered his gun again. "Private Joe" was born in Staunton, Va., Oct. 28, 1840, and when 17 went to Illinois with his father's large family. He became a brick-layer and helped to till the modest Fifer farm. He longed for education, and ambition burned in his bosom. It was not until the war was over that he got his chance. He was graduated from Illinois Wesleyan University and was admitted to the bar in 1865, in Bloomington. Two years later he was corporation counsel, the year following that was made state's attorney. In 1880 he was elected to the State Senate. In 1888 his friends urged his nomination for Governor by the Republican party. He was heralded as "Private Joe." His opponent on election day was John M. Palmer, who went out of the army a major general. Fifer was elected and served one term. He dropped out of public life until he was chosen Interstate Commerce Commissioner in 1899, in which high government office he served eight years.

SACKS CONTAINED BOGUS MONEY
Quarter Million Dollars Carranza Counterfeit Currency Was Secreted in Seven Sacks of Corn.

In an exportation of seven sacks of corn consigned from Laredo to a point in the interior of Mexico, a startling discovery was made by the officers in Nuevo Laredo this morning, resulting in the confiscation of the shipment of corn and the contents imbedded in the center of the sacks.

Upon examining some of the sacks it was discovered that they contained an amount of bogus constitutional currency, the aggregate of which was $250,000, the bills being in ten and twenty-dollar denominations. The United States officers are trying to ascertain the names of the shippers of the corn.

As a precaution against any violation of the law in future all sacks of provisions and other goods shipped across into Mexico in like manner will be probed with steel rods.

NO SCHOOL ON CIRCUS DAY.

Useless to Try to Hold Kiddies From Seeing Parade and So Trustees Declare Vacation for Day.

Recognizing the fact that it would be utterly futile and downright mean on their part to endeavor to hold the kiddies in the school room while a great big circus is parading the streets of Laredo on next Monday forenoon, the school board of the city schools have declared Monday as a holiday and the kiddies, big and small, thin and fat, ugly and pretty, smart and dull and all other kinds who go to school can get out on the streets and see the elephants, the camels, the monkeys, the disks, the sacred vacas and other offerings in the parade.

On Monday afternoon there will be the first performance, and then the kiddies can go and visit the menageries, feed the monkeys and elephants peanuts, see the side shows and enjoy themselves generally. The afternoon show will be principally for the kiddies—at night the more mature folks will take in the Floto-Sells-Buffalo Bill program in the several arenas under the big tents.

CHILDREN JAMMED BURNING STAIRWAY

SIX HUNDRED LITTLE ONES TRAPPED IN FIRE DOOMED BUILDING AND MANY LOST LIVES.

By Associated Press.

Peabody, Mass., Oct. 28.—Twenty or twenty-five children were crushed, smothered or burned to death today in a panic in a fire which destroyed a school here. The building had no fire escapes. The main exits were two wooden stairways. The fire started from an explosion from unknown cause in the basement. In five minutes it was sweeping the upper floors.

More than 600 children under 16 years of age were in St. John's Parochial school today when fire broke out in the basement, flames and smoke cut off the exits. The building, of brick and three stories in height, was in the center of the town. Upon hearing the alarm the neighbors rushed to the building.

The children were jammed in the windows and began jumping. Outside men and women held coats or stretch blankets to catch the little ones, but many of them were hurt by the fall.

Inside the building sixteen sisters in charge of the school marshalled the children for the usual fire drill exit, but at the sight of smoke in the stairways and flames from the basement a panic began.

Many children on the upper floors, unable to get down, packed the stairways. At the front door the exit became so choked with the frantic children and later with their dead or half suffocated bodies that the firemen on their arrival could not enter the building through the door, but first went into the building via ladders and windows. They broke open the rear door. Two bodies lay behind it. All the sisters were saved.

HAGGIN THOROUGHBREDS AT AUCTION.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 28.—The sale of thoroughbreds which began today at Elmdorf Farm, the 8,000 acre estate of the late James B. Haggin, marks the passing of the famous breeding farm where the wonders of the racing world on three continents were bred. Haggin was for twenty years the greatest breeder of race horses in the world. There were upward of 250 mares and 50 or more stallions at Elmdorf when some five years ago Mr. Haggin decided that the restrictions on racing in various states would make it impossible to market the thoroughbreds and he began to disperse his great collection of thoroughbred breeders. The last of the lot will go under the hammer today, when the stallions Ballot, Sain and Hessian, with 68 brood mares and 31 weanlings are put up for auction. Previous to his breeding venture here, Haggin maintained a 39,000 acre breeding farm in California, where he had from 600 to 1,000 stallions and mares. Today's sale is an old-fashioned affair, and it has attracted to Lexington the greatest collection of horse folk the blue grass capital has entertained in many years.

THE PLOT EXPOSED.

The capture of one of the Mexicans implicated in the "revolutionary" plot for the invasion of Texas has caused the exposure of the plans of the bandits, and it involves several Mexicans who have been among the chief of fenders.

The arrested man participated in the wreck of the train near Brownsville and also in several of the bandit raids, according to his confession, and he declares that Luis de la Rosa and Aniceto Plaza, the leaders in the plot, have lived in Reynosa for several weeks and maintained headquarters there.

The prisoner, "Chano" Flores, says the "revolutionary" army consists of about 500 men, divided into several companies, the one to which he belonged consisting of 50 or 60 men. He has given the name of a man who he declares was captain of the company that caused the wreck, but who has not yet been apprehended.

The bandits after the wreck and the killing and robbery of the passengers went toward the north, where they expected to find hiding places, indicating that some of those connected with the plot are residents of Texas.

Flores said the members of the band had got nothing from the results of the robbery, but he supposed the money went to the leaders, for the purpose of carrying on the "revolution."

Chapa, another of the men arrested by the Brownsville officers, denies Flores' story, but is being held on charges of complicity in the plot. Altogether eight Mexicans have been arrested suspected of guilty knowledge of the plot, and the officers are putting out a drag net for many more.

Soldiers chasing one of the men after the fight at Rio del Arrol are said to have found a diary containing the roll of the band and the rules and regulations of the plotters.

The report that the Carranza soldiers are chasing the bandits southward from Reynosa indicates that the officials are becoming convinced (too late) that there was something in the American charges that the outlaws were finding shelter in towns Garrisoned by the Carranzistas, and that they are fearful of the results of longer delay in their action against the lawless Mexicans on their side of the river.

Our government in Washington seems very optimistic regarding the result of their protests to Carranza concerning the activity of the bandits on the border, but past performances do not indicate that anything will come of the ostensible pursuit of the outlaws, and we shall probably hear a regretful announcement that the bandits escaped the pursuing soldiers.

At any rate, if the disorders continue any longer we shall know whom to blame for them, especially as the recognition of Carranza gives us a chief to hold to account for further disturbances.

The announcement that Carranza's visit to the border has been indefinitely postponed may be the result of the strong feeling among the Americans who have suffered from the depredations of the bandits, and he may feel that he is not so welcome as he would have been a few months ago.

The committees from Brownsville who were sent to confer with Governor Ferguson and President Wilson will meet with an assurance that all possible will be done, especially since Congressman Garner has already informed the Washington administration of the feeling among Americans as to the necessity of putting a stop to the depredations.

The state department seems to think that all is done when it is announced that the department "confidently expects Carranza to immediately take steps to suppress the bandits." But we have "confidently expected" the Mexicans in power to do many things that they have not, the slightest intention of doing, and this is possibly in the same category.

THE STARVING POLES.

An appeal which is issued by the American committee for the relief of the Polish victims of the war should be read by all. It is a terrible indictment of the war lords, and it paints in vivid colors the sufferings of the poor people who have been enslaved for over a century.

The area desolated by the battles between the Russians on one side and the Austrians and Germans on the other is as large, to quote the appeal, "as the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts, and 400 towns and 12,500 villages have been completely ruined. The losses so far amount to nine billions of dollars!"

Affected by the gigantic struggle are eighteen million inhabitants and "fully eleven millions of helpless women and children, peasants and workmen, the very essence of the nation, have been driven into the open. Thousands are hiding among ruins, in woods or in hollows, subsisting on roots or the bark of trees."

The response to the appeal of the Belgians was prompt and generous. Yet the Belgians are not in as hard a case as are the suffering Poles. In Belgium many industries have been revived, and much of the country is again under cultivation, while many of the towns and cities have escaped destruction.

In Poland there is hardly an acre of ground that is now under cultivation. There is hardly a factory that is operating, and there is no money with which to buy food or shelter, while the supplies are barely sufficient for the armies, without taking into consideration the great population now facing starvation.

The Poles had no voice in this war. They were forced to fight on the side of whatever nation happened to rule over them, and their losses have been severe in all the recent campaigns.

The Polish winter is one of the most severe known in Europe. It congeals the streams, it stops all outdoor industry, and it is only withstood by well-dressed, well-fed and well-sheltered people. Think then, of the condition of the Polish people.

taint of death which stares these homeless, unclad and starving millions in the face!

Poland sent us two of her worthiest sons to fight for American freedom when our army lay starving at Valley Forge. The names of Kosciuszko and Pulaski will ever be honored by Americans. They deserve their honors at the hands of the American people, and one of the best memorials to the two brave soldiers would be aid for their starving fellow-countrymen.

Ignace Paderewski, the famous pianist, who has delighted thousands of American audiences, is at the head of the American committee. He issues this urgent appeal for aid for his fellow-countrymen with the knowledge of the generous hearts of Americans, and he adds:

"Your generosity will allay suffering and save lives. In some mother heart there will be a prayer of gratitude of you, the unknown helper in the name of worldwide brotherhood and sisterhood."

So far a little over $100,000 has been contributed in the United States. The committee says it needs a million dollars at once. When one stops to consider that 3,500,000 Poles are now actually starving, and that the million dollars asked for will supply but one or two days' food for each of the starving, he can readily see that the need is urgent.

The committee asks that all contribution be made payable to the National City Bank of New York, for the Polish Relief Fund, and that the contribution be made at once, in order that the money may be called to the general committee at Lausanne, Switzerland, where the famous novelist, Henry Sienkiewicz, is in charge of the distribution of relief.

This is a worthy benefaction, and every cent contributed will be used for the benefit of the suffering Poles.

A shell from the proving grounds at Sandy Hook nearly struck one of our naval vessels the other day. When a shell endangers a ship that cannot even be seen, it is evident that it has a long reach, and if the gunner has good "control" it ought to be useful.

The saloon keepers of Texas complain that social clubs, bootleggers and blind tigers are hurting their business. Well, the system that permits such things tends to hurt the saloons, even if it has to wink at law-breaking to do it.

When Germany finally comes to the consideration of peace terms, she will find that she will have little to say about the conditions. Those will naturally be dictated by the victors.

Mr. Rockefeller is indignant because people in mere trade are permitted to carry to their plebeian business in the same block where he resides. There was a time when he was not so touchy about "commercialism," but it was before he had smoothed competition.

COTULLA'S BIG TRADES DAY.

COLONEL GONZALES IS PRISONER

To Exonerate Himself of Guilt of Murder of His Friends He Will Be Given Preliminary Trial.

Colonel Tirso Gonzales, the Carranza military officer who is charged with the accidental killing of his friend, Major Garcia, while the two were sitting on a plaza in Nuevo Laredo about midnight Sunday, playing with their revolvers, is being held as a prisoner in the court in the Mexican city across the way.

Colonel Gonzales claims that the death of his friend was the result of the accidental discharge of a pistol, and in order to exonerate himself he will be called before a trial court over there in a day or two.

A PRESIDENTIAL SALUTE FOR GENERAL CARRANZA

WILL BE GREETED WITH 21 GUNS IF HE COMES TO LAREDO.

Brigadier General Evans Receives Instructions from Washington to Accord Carranza Military Honors.

If Venustiano Carranza, the president de facto of the republic of Mexico, should honor Laredo with a visit during the time that he is in the Mexican city across the boundary line, he will be greeted with all the courtesy and honors becoming his rank—he will receive a presidential salute at the hands of the United States military forces stationed at Fort McIntosh and the Ninth Infantry Camp in Laredo. Should he come across the boundary line into American territory the United States big guns will boom twenty-one times, giving him the same welcome that would be given any other ruler or president of a country or our own president when visiting a military post or a city where one is located.

Brigadier General R. K. Evans, commander of the Second Brigade, and stationed at the Ninth Infantry Camp, yesterday in response to inquiries made by him of the secretary of war, received orders that in the event Carranza, the recognized de facto president of Mexico, visited Laredo he should be accorded a full military honors and be welcomed with a presidential salute of twenty-one guns. If he crosses to the American side here he will also be given a military escort by General Evans, Colonel Crane and Colonel Brown, the three commanders here, and will be invited to visit the two military camps, where he will be the guest of honor of the American military officers.

The United States government, through its president and secretary of state, have promulgated the manifesto recognizing General Carranza as the head of the Mexican government and is now according him every courtesy and show of friendship within their power, this having a good moral influence and tending to support the efforts to bring about peace and order in Mexico.

ALL EUROPE IN WAR.

While the Indian warrior's war-whoop has been silent with us for years, and relegated to such distant past history that even its echoes will never be heard, its last lingering participants are in friendly alliance in the "Peace Pow-wow" with which Buffalo Bill and his red brothers are celebrating its burial in festive "Peace Smoke" chants and dances, with the Sells-Floto Buffalo Bill Show enlarged to an extent and managed with an efficiency of programic merit that challenges comparison with anything in its field for quality as well as quantity of standard features. Really, an old-time circus, with up-to-date methods in development in every line of a myriad of thrilling features, making its first visit East, as a combination of two great institutions cleverly blended into one grand arena sensation.

CAYUSES MUST BE INSPECTED.

Carranza Cavalry Mounts and Pack Mules and Burros Must Be Inspected to Determine Condition.

According to information received by government officials in this city regarding the proposed movement of the Carranza troops from Mexico through Eagle Pass to the state of Sonora by a route which will carry them through Texas, quarantine regulations will be strictly enforced as far as they pertain to cattle and horses coming from territory within the quarantine line where ticks infest live stock and are classed as animals from infected territory.

If the Carranza troops coming to Eagle Pass for passage through this state to Sonora bring with them their horses, mules and burros, they must submit them to a rigid inspection at the border to determine whether or not they are infected with the disease-carrying ticks, and if found to have them the animals will have to be dipped before permitted to come to the American side. The quarantine district extends all along the Mexican border and covers a large area of the states bordering on Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana.

Play Portrayed Divine Injunction.

"Judge Not, or the Woman of Mona Diggings," was the title of a great play given at the Rex last night, giving a portrayal of the divine injunction, "Judge not lest ye be judged." It was a strong, gripping play, with tense situations and stirring scenes, but the play brings out a beautiful lesson and Julia Dean, in the role of the woman of the diggings, is given an opportunity to demonstrate her versatility in the parts of the country girl and then the reformed member of the upper tondom, from which she goes to court in a noted trial for the murder of her dissipated husband. Following the court trial comes forgiveness and the proverbial "all's well that ends well."

PECULIAR SILVER DOLLARS NOW BEING SOLD IN LAREDO

ARE ONES MADE BY EMILIANO ZAPATA AND CONTAIN GOLD.

Six Hundred of the Notorious Pesos Issued by the Southern Mexican Bandit Chief Are Sold Here.

A Mexican gentleman arriving in Laredo yesterday morning from Southern Mexico had in his possession a valise containing a large quantity of Zapata silver dollars, and shortly after his arrival here he made a deal with a local party whereby he disposed of six hundred of the pesos for a consideration of $900, or at the rate of $1.50 each.

The Zapata dollars are a freakish denomination of Mexican money and in size compares to the Mexican peso. However, instead of being made entirely of silver, these dollars contain a certain quantity of gold and it is said the real value of the dollar is far above 100 cents. Stamped on the face of the pesos, below the words, "reform and liberty," are the notations telling how much gold is contained in each coin. On the one side is the symbolical cap of liberty of Mexico, while on the obverse side of the dollar is the time-honored Mexican eagle perched on the cactus branch. The mint work is crude and very rough and the stamping of the words on the coins is hardly decipherable, being irregular and badly impressed, while the size of the dollar from different angles is not symmetrical.

The Zapata dollars purchased in Laredo yesterday are being disposed of at two dollars American each and people are securing them to retain as souvenirs of the revolution, and being the only memento of the wild bandit who has never surrendered to Madero, Huerta or Carranza, naturally they will be kept as a valuable token of the Mexican revolution.

Eleven head of cattle seized for violation of the United States Revenue Laws will be sold at the Customs House, Monday, November 1st, 1915, at 11 o'clock, a. m. All persons claiming same are hereby notified to file their claims with the Collector within seven days from date hereon. Ed. Cotulla, Special Deputy Collector. Laredo, October 25, 1915.

CHANCES FOR THE BOYS.

Some of the papers call attention to the fact that sixty years ago John D. Rockefeller was a bookkeeper for a small store at a salary of $3.50 a week, and some of them are fond of telling the youth of today that, according to John D. himself, the chances today are more numerous and more promising than they were then.

The Fort Arthur News punctures this balloon by saying that the chances for rebating are not as good as they were then, and adds that "the fifty little rebate" was the joker in John D.'s deck all the time.

There are merchant princes today who made the foundation of their fortunes by government contracts during the Civil War, and no doubt they would tell the youth of today that chances are just as good now as they were then. But an enlightened public opinion frowns today upon selling shoddy for wool, sand for sugar and rotten meat for "prime beef."

There are railroad kings who made their fortunes by promoting the great transcontinental railways soon after the war, and they would probably tell the young men of today that there are better opportunities now for building great railways than there were in the 70's. But they do not add that without the great steals engineered through congress which gave them millions of acres of the people's land they would not have been able to retire with enormous fortunes after a few years of promoting.

In fact, most of the great fortunes in this country have been made by a plain disregard of the laws of honesty, and the privilege of doing things "legally, if not honestly," was the foundation of many of the fortunes. Many of the great landowners have become rich through so manipulating the tax records that they were enabled to hold their lands for years, or until the honest development by others brought them the reward of being land "hogs," in the unearned increase in the value of their holdings.

One of the greatest of landowners in this country is the great lumber "king" of the northwest, who practically stole from the people the majority of his timber holdings, and who hired men to homestead rich timber lands and afterward transfer them to him for a merely nominal consideration.

There are no more such opportunities for young men as there have been in the past. The public conscience is waking up, and the individual conscience is becoming troublesome. True, there are still chances in mining, oil drilling, and other pursuits of a like character, but the chances in these lines are more of a gamble than legitimate business, and there will be few Rockefeller's or Goulds or other captains of industry in the future, because the people are awake to the causes which led to their wealth.

Already many of the millionaire estates have been broken up by the death of the originator of the fortune, and the consequent division of the money. And there are few of the descendants who are capable of continuing the work of accumulation.

The great fortunes in the East which rest on the increased increment on city lots are still increasing. But there must some day come a time when further increase is impossible, and the destruction of many condemned buildings cuts down the income from the properties.

Honest labor, honest industry and honest manufacture never yet made an enormous fortune. The few manufacturers who have seen their profits swell into millions did so because there was an absence of regulation of their manner of conducting business.

A recent fortune made by an automobile manufacturer is an example of the manner in which a shrewd manipulator can make enormous profits—not only out of his business, but out of the money which he reinvests in other lines. Competition in this line will result in lower prices for the consumers, and eventually the automobile manufacturer will no longer be classed in the enormously wealthy class, any more than the manufacturer of clothings or of derby hats.

SALOON REGULATING.

For more than forty years the saloons, beer gardens and other places where liquor is dispensed in Chicago have remained open on Sunday the same as on other days of the week. The only days when the saloons were closed during all that time were election days.

The new mayor of Chicago, "Bad Bill" Thompson, at the urgent request of the various "law and order" leagues, issued peremptory orders to the police to close the saloons on Sunday, with the announcement that all saloon keepers disobeying the closing order would lose their licenses.

The first Sunday the new order went into operation there were but six saloons that disobeyed it, and the following Sunday there were but 74 of the saloon keepers who disobeyed the injunction.

Perhaps the strangest part of the whole affair—to the people who insisted upon the strict observation of the law, at least—is that the saloon proprietors are rejoicing over the new order. They claim that their Saturday sales have more than made up to the closing down on Sunday, especially as they are saving money in lessened operating costs, hire of help, etc., through the Sunday close down.

Whenever a saloon operates it is because there is a demand for its operation. The saloon keepers, no more than other merchants, are not in business for their health, and without a patronage that pays them they will not run their places.

For many years there were hundreds of beer gardens that ran on Sundays, especially in the summer time. During the afternoon and evening they were comfortably filled, for the most part with respectable families, and the greater part of them furnished music for dancing, as well as concerts.

It is now stated that the result of the Sunday closing is seen in the lessened number of arrests for Sunday drunks, the better condition of the laboring men on Monday morning, and the greater quiet of the streets on Sunday.

If this is true, Chicago is to be congratulated on the new order of things under the present mayor, even though it took half a century to come to the idea that Sunday sales of liquor were subversive of good morals and order.

When the recently enacted 9:30 closing law went into effect in Texas, there were many who predicted that it would drive the saloons out of business. It was presumed to have been a touch of Machiavellian cleverness on the part of the "law and order" people that would result in the eventual closing down of all the saloons.

But the reverse has happened in many places. In Laredo, for instance, there are more saloons than there were under the old law that permitted a saloon to keep its doors open until 12 o'clock. The operating costs have been lessened to the saloon keepers, the number of bartenders has been cut down, and according to reliable information the amount of liquor sold is almost, if not quite, as much as before.

The regulation of saloons should be along the same lines that are used in the regulation of other business. If a saloon is run in such a manner as to become a nuisance to the neighborhood, if it persists in violating the law, if it attempts to dominate politics in city or state—it should be abolished, not regulated.

The license system permits a better regulation of the saloons than any other system. A persistent violator of the law should not be granted a license, and no one is more in favor of such a regulation than the saloon-keeper who conducts an orderly place and obeys the laws and ordinances.

As a result of the Sunday closing of saloons in Chicago, there probably will be a campaign against other public places that violate the Sunday-closing law. And there are many of them in various lines of business.

Carranza will not reach Nuevo Laredo before Wednesday, and the great celebration will have to be postponed until that date. And by that time he may have to give guarantees as to stopping the raids in the lower country, in which case he might not receive the "regimental escort" which his organ in Laredo is so anxious that he should get.

The police chief of Chicago is a brave man; of that there can be no doubt. He is now arresting women who play cards for prizes.

As a result of the army headquarters established at Harlingen, the state controller has had to close nine blind tigers at that place. Another instance of trying to stop a craving by legislation.

HON. FRANK M. BYRNE

Hon. Frank M. Byrne, Governor of South Dakota, is 57 years old today.

He was a homesteader in his youth, and has grown up with the state, of which he is now chief executive. Governor Byrne was born at Volney, Iowa, October 25, 1858, and received his education in the public schools there. When he became of age he moved to Sioux Falls, in Dakota Territory, and the following year he took up a homestead. Later he removed to Faulk County, and set up an extensive ranch. He made a success in farming, and engaged in real estate development, which yielded him a modest fortune. He was elected to the first State of South Dakota, and served several terms. In 1909 he was elected Lieutenant Governor, and two years later won the Governorship on the Republican ticket. He was re-elected last November. Governor Byrne is an influential leader in the Northwest, and has had no small part in the development of that region.

Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 23.—The monument to Christopher Dock, the first schoolmaster in the State, will be unveiled today at Skipback, in Montgomery County, and Governor Brumbaugh, himself a noted educator, will make the principal address. He was also the first American to write on the science of teaching, which has developed so greatly since his time. Former Governor Pennypacker, who wrote the inscription that is carved in the monument, and who planned the memorial, will also speak.

RED SOX EXPECT TO REPEAT.

Boston, Oct. 25.—The baseball dopers of the East are strong for the Red Sox to repeat next year. They have it all figured out that unless some marvellous new baseball machine is put together by Comiskey or Jennings, the Boston club are due to head the list next autumn. There is many a slip in baseball, however, and the dope is not always safe to rely on.

The Red Sox are not a flash in the pan club. They were up in second place last year, and the addition of Barry and Hobbie put them into first place this year despite the almost unbeatable clubs at Detroit and Chicago. The talent was in the club this year, and they had the goods. They had a good "chief" to work for in Lannin, and that aided materially. A boss who knows how to handle his men is a big factor in any endeavor.

The dope on which the experts figure the Red Sox to repeat is along these lines: That the outfield is the best in the country, offensive and defensive, the pitching staff is by long odds the best gathered on one club this year, and the infield has the makings. Much of the team is young material, in point of individual age, and it should be intact for several years to come. Lannin will go into next season with practically the same line-up, his only possible changes being in the catchers. His pitchers should improve rather than deteriorate. Should Joe Wood return to his old-time form, there will be a string of hurlers seldom gathered in the history of the game. Carrigan believes his men are practically free from bone-head play. The only great improvement he would like to see is in base-running. The speed of the team as a whole is slow on the bases.

The new World Champions are modest fellows. They ducked the many feasts, ovations and parades and hid their separate trails to their homes. And the fans have had their last dispute as to who was the greatest hero of the series, and now everybody in town is looking for something new to worry about.

SENATOR'S WIFE HAS HARD HNUT FOR ALIMONY.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 25.—The suit for separation brought by Mrs. Grace B. Hollis against U. S. Senator Henry F. Hollis has brought out the fact that the Senator is in Newfoundland and has arranged to be away from home for a year. Mrs. Hollis is seeking alimony, and her attorneys are making inquiry into the Senator's affairs. It developed in their inquiry that Senator Hollis sold his law business to his partners, and had appointed a trustee for his son and daughter. He had arranged to have his salary deposited in a certain bank to the credit of the trustee for his children.

Senator Hollis was in Boston in July, and since then none of his New Hampshire friends have seen him. When the suit for legal separation was filed by his wife, his disappearance was commented upon. It developed that he is recovering his health and is in Newfoundland, but his exact residence there is still a mystery.

The Senator was married in 1893, when he began law practice in this city. His wife's maiden name was Grace Bruerton Fisher. The suit for separation created a sensation, and it disclosed the rift in the family happiness.

PLAIN QUESTIONS TO LAREDO PEOPLE.

Every Laredo Reader Will Admit the Soundness of the Logic.

Would Laredo people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as the do if the medicine were not reliable? Would they confirm their statements after years have elapsed if their experiences did not show the remedy to be deserving of it? Statements like the following must carry conviction to the mind of every reader:

Carmen Zamora, 1408 Furber St., Laredo, says: "I was troubled by backache and other symptoms of kidney complaint for several years. Whenever I caught cold or did a little extra work, these troubles were worse. The pain in my back often got so bad that I couldn't stoop over to save my life. The secretions were scanty and painful in passage. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills, which I got from the City Drug Co., cured this trouble. It has now been some time since my back has given me any annoyance." (Statement given August 16, 1905.)

The Test of Time.

On May 26, 1915, Mr. Zamora said: "I have had no kidney trouble in some time and I feel confident that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured me."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Zamora has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

LAREDOS WERE WHITEWASHED.

Whole Nestful of Geese Eggs Donated to Them By the Soldiers During Sluggest Sunday Afternoon.

The Laredos, the local aggregation that puts up a pretty good exhibition of the national sport spasmodically and annexes victories when they get their real team working together, were administered a nice clean coat of whitewash yesterday afternoon and departed from the field of battle in a garb of immaculate white and with depressed spirits, for the drubbing was of the kind that eliminated the possibility of smiles and the derisive comments heard brought pain to the hearts of the vanquished.

"Matty" Quinn for the soldiers and "Alex" Perkins for the Laredos were the opposing twirlers. The game was a humdinger up to the sixth, as no admissions home had been issued up to that spasm, but in the sextette saahay somebody landed on Perkins, the pyrotechnics began and the sky became emblazoned with the flying brands. When the trouble was suppressed and the "fire" quenched a little piece of chalk "told" the story and there were a triplet of runs recorded in the round for the soldiers. Vengeance was in the eyes of the Laredos, but that seemed to be the only affected part, for they could not communicate their revenge to the swatter or bat. Again terrible disaster occurred in another round that annexed the soldiers five more runs, making the total eight, and thus, with depressed spirits and stock selling below par the Laredos crept away from the diamond in their snow-white garb and went to "home, sweet home," while the soldiers were in camp at most time with a good appetite and in high spirits. The score of the game at the Caliche yesterday was 8 to 6 in favor of los soldados.

When your food does not digest well and you feel "blue," tired and discouraged, you should use a little HERBINE at bedtime. It opens the bowels, purifies the system and restores a fine feeling of health and energy. Price 50c. Sold by all druggists.

MAJOR FELIX GARCIA KILLED.

He and Colonel Tirso Gonzales Were Playing With Revolvers When Gonzales' Weapon Was Discharged.

A deplorable accident occurred in Nuevo Laredo at midnight whereby an intimate friend became the murderer of a man whom he held in the highest estimation and with whom he was always in company. The dead man is Major Felix Garcia, of the Carranza garrison in Nuevo Laredo, while the man who caused his death is Colonel Tirso Gonzales, one of the commanding officers of the garrison in the Mexican city. Colonel Gonzales and his friend, Major Garcia, were playing with their automatic revolvers on one of the plazas in Nuevo Laredo last night shortly before midnight, when one of the weapons was discharged, the bullet entering the left breast of Major Garcia and passing out through the lower spine. Garcia died a short time afterwards. The accident was one that is much deplored, as both men are prominent in Nuevo Laredo and were known to be very intimate friends.

"Judge Not."

A forcible presentation of the Divine injunction is that given in the Western play to be produced at the Rex tonight. The story teems with tense situations, and its climax is the old "and they married and lived happily ever after."

VOLUNTARILY TRANSFERRED.

Sixty-seven Men of the Ninth Infantry, of Their Own Volition, Transferred to the Philippines.

Voluntarily submitting to a transfer of service that would take them to the Far East and the jungles of the Philippine Islands, a total of sixty-seven men of the Ninth Infantry Regiment here will leave on Wednesday afternoon for San Francisco, where they will go aboard an army transport and start on their voyage to Manila.

With the exception of two sergeants, all the men are privates, and some of them have seen long service in Uncle Sam's fighting ranks, and their decision to go to the islands for service was of their own volition. Recruits will take their places in the regiment here.

FIVE THOUSAND SOLDIERS TO GO BY WAY EAGLE PASS

NOT THROUGH LAREDO, AS ANNOUNCED IN PAPERS SUNDAY.

Large Contingent of Carranza Soldiers, Under Three Generals, Reach Piedras Negras for Movement.

There is nothing known in official military circles in Nuevo Laredo about the report sent out and published in some of the state papers yesterday to the effect that a large troop movement from Mexico was being planned and at least 5,000 Mexican soldiers would pass through Texas "in bond" to Sonora, where they would go to make a clean-up of the remnant of Villistas left there.

The report that the Mexican soldiers would pass through Laredo was merely another case of getting wires crossed and diverting a route which had really been mapped out—that from Monterey to Piedras Negras, where the soldiers would be crossed to Eagle Pass and then transported through Texas, under guard of United States soldiers to Agua Prieta, the American soldiers accompanying the Carranza troops from border line to border line. The soldiers have already arrived in Piedras Negras. Here they will be put in coaches unarmed and thus moved, while their arms and ammunition, under guard of U. S. soldiers, will be placed in sealed cars and sent in bond to the border where they proceed to Agua Prieta, in the state of Sonora.

The report that the Mexican troops would pass through Laredo on their way to Sonora naturally caused some interest here and many people were anticipating beholding an unusual spectacle, but there is nothing doing, as the troops are not coming this way and did not intend to, having planned the trip through Piedras Negras immediately after the recognition of Carranza was announced from Washington.

One bay mare, seized for violation of the United States Revenue Laws will be sold at the Custom House, Saturday, October 30th, 1915, at 11 o'clock, a. m. All persons claiming same are hereby notified to file their claims with the Collector within seven days from date hereon. Ed Cutila, Special Deputy Collector, Laredo, October 25, 1915.

SUPPRESSION OF TROUBLE IN MEXICO IS NOW CERTAIN

FORMER REFUGEES TAKE OPTIMISTIC VIEW OF SITUATION.

With Result That Every Train Arriving in Laredo is Loaded With Foreigners Going Back to Mexico.

The trains arriving here Sunday and today brought among their lists of passengers a large number of men and women, representing Americans, English and Germans, and perhaps a few other nationalities, who were bound for Mexico to again take up their residence after an enforced absence of months, and in some instances years—all because of the recent revolution.

Those people consider that the troubles down there are now being rapidly suppressed and that tranquility will soon prevail throughout the republic, all industrial plants will resume work, mines will be in operation in full blast, oil field development will be on day and night and a general era of prosperity will pervade Mexico. The Americans who are going back to that country just now are in most instances men who have invested their all there and are willing to take chances to retrieve their losses caused by the revolution.

To the Times reporter this morning one American said, "I lost everything I had down there as a result of the Villa-Carranza trouble, but I am going back there, make perseverance and hard work my slogan and I venture to say that within the next year I will have established myself as solidly as when I was ousted from my little plantation and told to hike while hiking was good. I am going back there to hazard the chance of regaining what I have lost."

Many of the American employees of the American and English oil fields in Mexico are returning to their positions, and consequently the first men to report for duty are the ones who are getting the best jobs. Several Americans who are interested in mines in the El Oro district and other sections of Mexico have been among the passengers through here the past three days. Some of the men say that the Zapatistas have raised havoc with their properties, but that they expect after some hard work to be able to restore them to their former condition, especially some mines in the Durango district.

500,000 ROUNDS CARTRIDGES.

For the Carranza Military Forces Delivered to Nuevo Laredo Authorities Saturday Afternoon.

A shipment comprising a total of one half million rounds of thirty-three cartridges from the Eastern factory consigned to the commander of the Mexican military forces at Monterey arrived in Laredo Saturday morning and were delivered same afternoon to the constitutionalist consul here.

On Saturday night the munitions were crossed to the Mexican side of the river and held until this morning, when they were sent to their destination on train leaving Nuevo Laredo. Another large shipment of cartridges are expected to reach here during the present week.

BAND CONCERT WELL ATTENDED

Martin Plaza Was Veritable Congested With People Last Evening Who Assembled to Enjoy Music.

One of the greatest crowds of people that ever congregated on Martin Plaza veritably congested that place last night, on the occasion of the concert given by the Banda Social. The program of musical selections rendered constituted a classical list and the numbers were much enjoyed by all.

All the walks about the plaza were verily jammed, while surrounding it on all sides were numerous vehicles and automobiles at times. During the promenade it was practically impossible at some times to penetrate the lines and gain the inner walks of the plaza. The pleasure spirit was rampant and the evening was a most ideal one for an outing.

THE ARENIC DOULEE HEADER.

New Amusement Sensation—The Sells-Floto Circus and Buffalo Bill Western Alliance.

Major John M. Burke, long identified with Indian affairs, and with Buffalo Bill's Wild West, is in our city and assures the public that (to use his own words):

One of the world's greatest circuses to visit our city this year will possess a distinctive novelty, a newness refreshing as it is the first visit east of the noted Sells-Floto circus, for the past decade playing in the West. United with this big show is the famous Buffalo Bill's Indian Alliance indorsed as to its quality by the association and presence of Col. W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill" himself, for forty years a unique character of the plains and an original among educators and entertainers.

"This is an excelsion, a nonpareil in the concentrated standard features of the real old time circus, evolved to the highest degree of efficiency in these lines, with the selected wild west gems added to many entirely new numbers of rapid action."

The Major is noted for veracity and adds, "Were this not so and the show not of the quality to surprise, as well as gratify the patron, neither Bill nor myself would be with it after our experience and record for forty years."

Major Burke wears a souvenir cross of crusader metal from the late Pope Pius X, handed to him by the present Pope, Benedict XV, then secretary to Cardinal Marry del Val. The Major can recount his visits to every city in Europe now on the battle lines from Ypres and Lille to Lemberg and Warsaw.

From Tuesday's Daily.

THE BORDER PROBLEM.

While the people in the Brownsville country are appealing to Governor Ferguson and to the federal government for some action that will put an end to the reign of terror in that section, word comes that Carranza troops are to be sent through Texas territory to reach a point where they can attack the Villistas.

Of course, the complete defeat of Villa may be of paramount importance to Carranza, but just at present it would seem to be wiser to send some of his spare troops—and he claims to have an abundance of them—to control his own border country and rid both nations of the menace of the outlaws whose acts may yet precipitate hostilities between the United States and Mexico.

Word comes from Brownsville that the people are aroused to the necessity of decisive action in the present situation, and it is even stated that the ranchers may take matters into their own hands if something is not done soon to relieve them of the menace to their lives and property.

Congressman Garner told the Washington authorities that unless the government soon put down the lawless element among the Mexicans the Texans might find themselves forced to cross the border and rid themselves for good and all of the outlaws.

The Carrancistas, from their chief down, have shown a lamentable lack of disposition toward ridding the border of the bandits. The charges that the outlaws have been given shelter and countenance by the Carranza officials is not without foundation. And despite the flaunting bravado of the bandits through the streets of Carrancista occupied towns, not one of them has been arrested in Mexico.

The people of Texas are entitled to protection the same as the people on the Canadian border. If the Canadians were to harbor outlaws who terrorized the Americans on their own side of the line—if such a thing can be imagined—there would be a prompt demand for protection, and there would no doubt be a prompt response.

True, hundreds of soldiers have been sent to the Texas border for the protection of the Americans, and the soldiers have done their very best under existing circumstances. But the officers are hampered by orders that practically destroy their effectiveness, and they are so confined by red tape that they are aware themselves of the futility of their labor.

The border country is a difficult place to handle. That much is conceded. The long stretches of uninhabited country along the river; the lack of roads, and even trails, in many parts; the familiarity of the marauders with the country and the complete lack of familiarity on the part of the soldiers with the country and the people—all these make the work of the border patrol especially difficult.

But when, added to these, there are orders that prevent the soldiers from firing across the border unless they are first fired upon; that prohibit the use of artillery in shelling the strongholds of the bandits (and which are usually the garrisons of the Carrancistas); that prohibit the pursuit of the outlaws across the border when the Mexican authorities refuse to apprehend them, there is little opportunity for the soldiers to do more than, as one of the officers expressed it, "guard a few waterholes and ranches."

Carranza has been recognized by this country as constituting the only government that Mexico has. He refuses to call himself president in order that he may be a candidate for that office at future elections, but he is nevertheless the supreme authority at present. He should be called upon to put an end to these raids from his side of the border, or else to acknowledge his incompetency and permit the Americans to pursue the bandits until captured or killed.

And he should be forced to return some satisfactory reply to the demands, instead of meeting them with his usual evasions and circumlocutions.

PREPAREDNESS.

There is a growing sentiment that the desirable peace is that which is the result of a determination to fight for it, not the peace which results from the submissive turning one cheek when the other has been struck.

The teaching of the great Russian, Tolstoy, was that non-resistance is the greatest thing in the world, and one need not see what it has made of the Russians to decide whether that non-resistance is desirable for us.

The preparedness which is now being demanded by the majority of our citizens is not the preparedness of which Germany has seen fit to boast during the past year. It is not the preparedness to attack others, nor the preparedness for aggression, but the preparedness which would prevent any others from attacking us.

Shakespeare said: "Thrice is he armed that hath his quarrel just," but in addition to that we must be prepared to defend ourselves against unwarranted attack.

Lack of preparedness for defense cost Belgium her independence, and permitted Luxembourg to be overrun by the Germans, who hoped to find France as unprepared as we have been. It is true that little Luxembourg was not able to defend herself against the invasion, but should we be as defenseless as a little nation the size of one of our counties?

Switzerland has a much smaller population than Belgium, but no power in Europe has had the foolish idea of invading Switzerland for many years past. Switzerland's preparation for defense is as great as that of Germany for the offensive, and the bristling front of bayonets that lines her border prevents any unwelcome notion of attack on the part of her neighbors.

Peace in this imperfect world of ours results only from the certainty that war is futile. Aggression is as much a part of human nature today as in the time of Caesar, but preparedness for defense robs aggression of its terrors, and prevents the covetous from putting their desires into acts.

The tame, submissive nation that desires peace at any price is best exemplified today by China, who has become the animated doormat of the civilized nations. Yet even China was found to be ready to fight when aggression became too pronounced, and the desire for unattainable peace was cast aside while she mustered her forces against Japan.

That a love of peace is not inherent in human nature is best shown by the enormous number of followers that Mahomet secured by his teaching that paradise was reached only by a bridge formed of a sword blade. His fiery followers braved the dangers of the battlefield for the hope of heaven.

The teaching of Christianity is peace, it is true, but not the peace which comes to the craven—the peace of slavery and abject submission. The peace that assures the undisputed possession of the fireside comes from the knowledge that the home is defended by a strong arm and a willing mind.

The Irishman was not far wrong when he said that "he would have peace if he had to fight for it." And most of those who have enjoyed peace in the past centuries have not only had to fight for it but to prove that they were ready to again fight for it should the occasion arise.

On the one hand armed aggression and an unscrupulous determination to seize all that is unprotected; on the other hand a craven submission to aggression rather than to do wrong by fighting; both these are wrong at times.

The best attitude for us is to prove to the world that we shall not fight save when we are attacked, and to also prove that we are able to defend ourselves from any aggression. This is to prevent aggression, for even the most determined aggressor will halt and consider what he has to lose in attempting to wrong a well-defended nation.

Preparedness for defense; a consciousness of our rights and a determination to demand them; the ability to defend but not to attack—these are what will assure our peace when abject submission would assure our conquest and enslavement.

The Bulgarians are reported to be showing their inferiority to take seasoned French and English soldiers in Serbia. And they have still to go up against the seasoned Serbian soldiers.

VAUDEVILLE AND PICTURES.

Double Bill at the Strand Theatre Today is Given as a Benefit for the Heights Civic Club.

There is a big double bill at the Strand Theatre this afternoon and tonight, with first-class vaudeville by two artists of the footlights and a motion picture feature with that great and fascinating emotional actress, Blanche Sweet, in the leading role in a great detective play, "The Clue," in five reels. To see Blanche Sweet in a role where she is given an opportunity to display her full histrionic work and her versatility is alone worth the price of admission, to say nothing of the sewing machine vaudeville—Wheeler & Wilson—Singers.

The performances at the Strand today are given as a benefit for the Heights Civic Club, the receipts augmenting the fund for a laudable work—the fencing and improvement of Loma Vista Park. That will be an incentive for buying tickets, whether you go or not—merely show the ladies that you appreciate their efforts toward improvement and put your shoulder to the wheel and lend them the encouragement they deserve. The slogan today is "Buy a Ticket!"

GEORGE DEXTER BURTON. OCTOBER 26.

George Dexter Burton, noted New England inventor, and authority on heating and working metals by electricity, is 60 years old today. His first invention was the Burton stock car, which he originated while editing a paper in New Hampshire. Then he turned to electricity as a field for his ingenuity. He patented a successful process of welding metals by electricity, and founded the American Electric Forge Company. Another of his inventions was a method of removing the hair from animal hides and tanning by electricity. He devised a process of electric smelting and electric laundering. His experiments took him into the vegetable world, and he invented a process of electrically separating vegetable fibre. Mr. Burton was born at Temple, N. H., Oct. 26, 1855, and received his education only in the common schools and an academy. At 18 he was editing a newspaper. For many years he has been lecturing on electrical methods of working metals before scientific societies and college men. He makes his home in Boston and New Ipswich, N. H.

LIVE ISSUES IN CALIFORNIA SPECIAL ELECTION TODAY.

San Francisco, Oct. 26.—The elimination of party designations on the ballots in this state, a fifteen million dollar bond issue for good roads, and a provision giving the legislature the power to designate what classes of property shall be subject exclusively to state taxation, are the big issues being voted on in California today at a special election.

Most of the stumping and fireworks centered on the "no party" question. Gov. Johnson headed the campaign for the defense of the no-party measures, and he has had big opposition in the Republican and Democratic camps, which joined hands to defeat the measure. The fight started in the last session of the Legislature, when the Governor forced the passage of bills removing the usual party emblems from the ballot in a state election and requiring candidates for office to run as individuals, not as Democrats, or Republicans, or Socialists, etc., as heretofore. These measures automatically became operative last August, but were held up by the invocation of the referendum.

The movement to defeat the proposed abolition of party designations was initiated by the Republican State Executive Committee and was quickly seconded by prominent Democrats. A joint committee, headed by William C. Ralston, former U. S. Sub-Treasurer here, was created to fight the proposed abolition of party designations. It is said that this committee has sought the aid of the national leaders of the Republican and Democratic parties.

The governor and his supporters have made a vigorous campaign in support of the movement to do away with party designations on the ballots. Governor Johnson has spoken in the leading cities, and other members of his administration have gone to all corners of the state. Their opponents have made a thorough canvass and are claiming a victory at the polls today.

The proposed constitutional amendment relating to taxation, which is also being voted on today, is opposed by the State Assessors' Association. It is claimed by the association that the adoption of the amendment will lessen San Francisco's revenue by over $600,000. The measure provides that the Legislature may classify property taxable only by the state, and such property as taxable for local purposes. The opponents of the law declare this is the most radical change in taxation laws ever submitted to the people. It is claimed that the measure takes from the voter the right of voice in taxation questions, for, as revenue laws are not subject to the referendum vote, the will of the Legislature would become supreme.

The fifteen-million-dollar bond issue for road construction is heartily endorsed by state leaders. It supplements the appropriation of eighteen millions in 1910, of which two-thirds has been expended on new roadways. The previous issue was for the purpose of constructing two main trunk lines from the northern to the southern ends of the state, approximately 2,500 miles. There is now planned some 1,959 miles of trunk lines and 1,163 miles of laterals, to cost $17,700,000.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. It is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circular, free. Sold by DRUGGISTS, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

NUEVO LAREDO CLEANED UP IN ANTICIPATION OF VISIT

BUT FIRST CHIEF HAS BEEN DELAYED IN TRIP TO BORDER.

However, the People of City Over the Way Got Busy and Put the Old Place in Fine Sanitary Shape.

One good result that is apparent following the announced intention of First Chief Carranza to visit Nuevo Laredo is the fact that as soon as the announcement of the coming of the first chief was given publicity committees were appointed in Nuevo Laredo to give the town a thorough cleaning up, fixing up the streets and putting all yards in sanitary condition. All this has been done in accordance with instructions issued by the municipal and military authorities over there, although General Carranza has failed to arrive yet.

When the soldiers and municipal forces were put to work cleaning up Nuevo Laredo they took the city in districts and completed one portion at a time, with the result that the work was made thorough. All residents were required to clean their yards and put them in wholesome condition by the use of disinfectants and other precautionary measures. Now Nuevo Laredo is spick and span and in an excellent sanitary condition.

When General Carranza will reach there has not been ascertained, as the last intelligence received in Nuevo Laredo was that he would probably be delayed several days at Torreon getting the internal affairs of that place in condition for the establishment of government and order there following the evacuation of the place by Villa troops. The temporary capital will also probably be established at Torreon, at least while General Carranza remains there. Nuevo Laredo is not expecting a visit from the first chief for some time now, but the announcement of his intention to visit that place last Saturday or Sunday had a most salutary effect on the place and it was given a genuine clean-up.

The ruins of the old Dr. Arthur home on Salinas Avenue, near the river front, was sold yesterday by Henry Deutz to Robert Rumsey of this city for a consideration of $1,500. The old Arthur home on the site was gutted by flames a few months ago and only the walls remain intact. There are three lots included with the purchase of the home.

Mr. Rumsey, who is a member of the customs service here, stated to the Times reporter that it is his intention to at once begin the clearance of the debris from the premises and that he would erect a nice brick cottage thereon for occupancy as a home.

Notice to Hunters.

This is to give notice that hunting is positively prohibited in our pastures, the Barricito, the Jaral, La Perla and Saneito, and persons caught hunting in any of them will be classed as trespassers and prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

REPRESENTATIVES ARRIVE TO BID ON THE FURNISHING

FOR LAREDO NATIONAL BANK, WHICH WILL BE MOST MODERN

Eight of the eLading Concerns of the Country Making Banking Furnishings, Are Now in Laredo.

Representatives of eight of the largest manufacturers of banking house furniture and fixtures in the United States are today in Laredo, some of them having arrived yesterday afternoon and others this morning, coming to Laredo to put in bids for the furniture and fixtures for the Laredo National Bank in their new home.

The plans for the equipping of the bank call for the latest make of banking house fixtures, wooden, metal and marble, and the outlay for these furnishings will represent several thousand dollars. They will be equal to the best and most modern found in any bank in the country. The representatives of the various manufacturers making these furnishings are today submitting their propositions and bids for the furnishing of the new home of the bank, but the contract for the work will not be awarded until tomorrow, and possibly later.

With the alteration of the plans and asking them provide for a three-story instead of a two-story structure, the bank has greatly increased the cost of their new building, but with a long-time lease for the third story floor, office rooms on the second floor and the bank occupying the lower floor the building will not be lacking anything in the way of occupancy when it is completed.

STILL SOME UNCERTAINTY REGARDING VISIT CARRANZA

NUEVO LAREDO CONTINUES PREPARATIONS FOR WELCOME.

Though It is Not Known on What Date the First Chief Will Visit Nuevo Laredo and Probably Laredo.

Up to noon today the military officials and committee of arrangements of Nuevo Laredo who are planning a great reception and ovation for the first chief when he arrives there, were unable to learn when General Carranza would reach Nuevo Laredo, but nevertheless the preparations are going right ahead. The double arches are being erected on the street corners, the plazas decorated and everything gotten in readiness for the occasion.

The last heard from General Carranza was when he reached Torreón and announced that his journey to the border would necessarily be delayed pending the adjustment of some matters at that place which demanded his personal attention. The Villistas in abandoning Torreón raised havoc generally and put things in a very bad shape, leaving confusion and trouble in their wake, and this is what is demanding attention from the first chief.

It is not known whether or not General Carranza has included in his itinerary a trip to this city while in Nuevo Laredo, but if he does come over the boundary line he will be accorded a welcome commensurate with the high office he holds and the recognition of his being supreme in Mexico.

Many Americans in this city will cross the boundary line when General Carranza arrives in Nuevo Laredo and join in the ovation to be tendered him, for in recognizing the first chief as the de facto president of Mexico the United States government likewise intended that the two nations should become more friendly and a pronounced effect to this end is expected henceforward.

One bay horse seized for violation of the United States Revenue Laws will be sold at the Custom House, Wednesday, November 3rd, 1915, at 11 o'clock, a. m. All persons claiming the same are hereby notified to file their claims with the Collector within seven days from the date hereon.

Climate Failed; Medicine Effective

Sufferers from Tuberculosis often think that medicine will not help them. Fresh air, regular habits and good food aid in restoring health, but more is often needed. Many have been restored to health by Eckman's Alternative. Read this—

Weldon, Ill.
"Gentlemen—Through my instrumentality I have been saved from a premature grave. On December 13, 1904, I was taken with Typhoid Pneumonia, which developed into Tuberculosis (bacilli were found). In February, 1905, I went to Fort Worth, Texas, and later to Canon City, Colorado. After being there two weeks my physician informed me that my case was hopeless. Three weeks later I returned home, weighing 103 pounds, the doctor having given me no assurance of reaching there alive. On July 14, 1905, I began taking Eckman's wonderful remedy for Lung Trouble. Now I am stout and well and can do any kind of work about my grain elevator." (Abbreviated).
Eckman's Alternative is most efficacious in bronchial catarrh and severe throat and lung affections and up-building the system. Contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs. Accept no substitutes. Small size $1; regular size $2. Sold by leading druggists. Write for booklet of recoveries.

It Needed an Explanation.

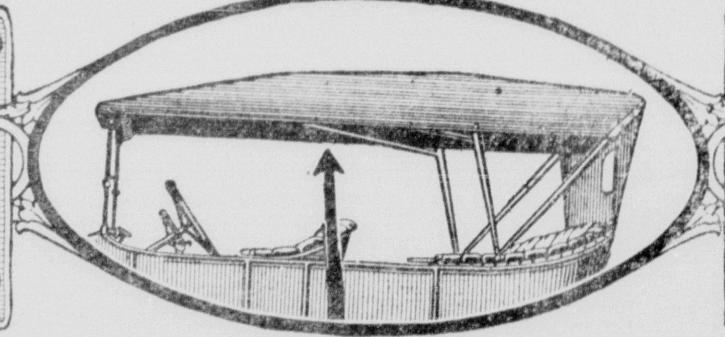

A Kansas City man relates that recently while on a trip about the environs of San Diego and Coronado beach in a sight-seeing motor car the driver pointed out various land-holdings, buildings, hotels, etc., as the property of J. D. Spreckels, Jr., the sugar magnate. Even the road over which they bowled was privately owned by Spreckels. As the car, following the winding road, drew near the bay, a little girl asked: "Mamma, who owns the bay?" Mamma smiled and said: "Why, dearie, God owns the bay." "Well," said the puzzled child, "how did he get it away from Mr. Spreckels?"

Machine Gun Perfected.

German machine guns show a great improvement on those that were used at the beginning of the war. They can be carried by one man, ammunition, spare parts, and all, and they are provided with an extra tube. It is not that the German gun is light, but it is so contrived that it can be hoisted on to a man's back, certain parts being padded and providing an easy grip.

TRAIN ROBBERS ARE ACTIVE IN OKLAHOMA

HELD TRAIN FOR TWO HOURS BUT ONLY SUCCEEDED IN GETTING PACKAGES OF LITTLE VALUE.

By Associated Press.

Enfala, Okla., Oct. 27.—Three posers today are beating the forests and marshes of the Canadian river bottoms near Onapa and working toward Winding Stair Mountain searching for seven robbers who this morning held up southbound Katy passenger train No. 9. They failed in their attempts to open three of the express safes and did not molest the passengers. The hold-up occurred a few miles north of here at the same place where the same train was robbed three years ago. Two bandits, it is believed, boarded the train at Muskogee. Later they crawled into the cab. When the engineer attempted to stop they ordered him to keep the train running and did not slow down until they had reached a camp fire near the track where the other bandits were waiting. They held the train two hours, working on the safes, and then wished the trainmen "Good night" and left.

COURT TO SAY IF CHURCH IS TOP TRIBUNAL.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 27.—The supreme court of Wisconsin has set today for arguments in the suit of the Kuryer Polski Publishing Co. against Archbishop Sebastian Messmer for $50,000 damages, growing out of a letter sent out by the archbishop to the Catholics of his diocese. The publishing concern alleges that this letter was intended to injure its business.

When the supreme court gives its decision, it will decide whether an ecclesiastical tribunal takes precedence over a court of law. The court has declined to grant a motion of the prelate's attorneys to dismiss the suit, and ruled that he could be subjected to a discovery statute examination, over ruling a decision of Circuit Judge Halscy. Halscy ruled that the archbishop could not be subjected to the discovery statute test desired by the publishing company.

There is a feeling among some of the members that the time of meeting should not conform to this ancient custom, while others feel they should stick to their old traditions. UNFAIR COMPETITION.

In the next few years to come the manufacturers and the workmen of the United States will have to face the most unfair competition they have ever been confronted with. The millions of survivors from the war will be willing to work for almost any wages for the sake of securing employment, and the manufacturers of Europe will be forced to cut their selling prices very low in order to meet the competition of those who have kept their factories running while the war closed down those of the belligerents.

The Galveston News fears that the people of the United States will "build around their ports walls of protection" to exclude and further starve the unfortunates of other countries to save their own lives.

Says the News: "The fact about the matter is that the benefits of free commerce are reciprocal. The Americans who raise grain and meat and cotton and wool and other things will need the trade of these unfortunate countries just as they need our trade."

This is the specious argument that is always brought forward when it is proposed to protect our own people against unfair competition from outside. In the meantime, the people of Europe do not permit our goods which compete with their manufactures to enter without paying heavy customs duties.

Pity for the unfortunate people of Europe should not carry us to the length of destroying our own manufactures, and surely the prosperity of our own workmen is as dear to us as that of the pauper workmen of Europe.

The workmen of China and Japan live on a pittance which would not pay the rent of one of our workmen. But are we to permit the competition of Chinese or Japanese cotton goods, for instance, with those of our own country?

A skilled glass worker in Belgium formerly got the enormous wage of $7 a week, while the American glass blower gets from $30 to $50 for the same period. Should we permit Belgian glass to enter our markets free of all duty in order that the Belgian may continue to buy our wheat and corn, our cotton (which he turns into cheap goods to compete with our own), and our other manufactures or from products?

It is frequently said that our arms and ammunition manufacturers are seeking an advantage from the proposed tariff to shut out foreign imports. Even in the times of the high protective tariff before the Democratic party came into power, Belgian shot guns were sold in large numbers in this country, many Americans preferring them to the domestic make.

Belgian lace was sold in this country in enormous quantities despite the high protective tariff, and there was no complaint from Belgium that we were "starving her people by a protective wall around our ports."

Germany sold us enormous quantities of dyestuffs, of chemicals, of proprietary medicines, of cutlery—in fact, thousands of articles, and she has not complained that we were keeping her out of the market by our tariff.

The necessity for raising unheard-of sums of money to pay off the war debts will no doubt bring down the European scale of wages still lower than it was before the war. Yet that is no reason why we should let down the bars and ruin the American manufacturer or reduce the wages of the American laborer.

We shall have enough competition in the way of unskilled labor as soon as the war-stricken people can arrange to emigrate. We shall in all probability have much competition with our skilled workmen, also, for there are many of those who suffered from the war who will want to insure themselves against a repetition of the military oppression in the future.

But to say that we must refrain from "building a protective wall around our ports" simply because the people of Europe are suffering from the results of the war is to say that because the Europeans are poor we must also become poor. It is altruism carried to the point of absurdity.

PLOTS AGAINST UNITED STATES.

If the charges brought by our department of justice agents are true, the German diplomats and consular agents in this country are guilty of the most unscrupulous criminal acts against a friendly nation that have ever been unearthed. The stories read like a page from Alexandre Dumas.

A report prepared for the German government but seized at Plymouth, England, in brief is as follows:

A statement of the money expended for German purposes in this country and the amount that would be needed to cripple American munition factories. A general statement of what had been done along these lines and what should be done to cripple transportation facilities from New York to allied ports. A narration of the attempts made to continue the trouble in Mexico, coupled with a statement of the probable cost of keeping Mexico in an unhealed for an indefinite period.

The report is understood to have made frequent reference to German diplomats in the United States, as well as an outline of what Germany might expect from hypochondriacal Americans in case there was a break in diplomatic relations. And, most significant of all, money seems to have been of no consideration provided the work were well done.

The report will not be published for the present, as it gave information which is expected to prove of great value to the secret service in tracing the activities of the Germans in a neutral country for which they professed friendship and a desire to continue friendly relations.

The knowledge secured from the report seems to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that the German and Austrian diplomats in this country were involved in serious offenses against our government.

Among other facts adduced is that the passport frauds have not abated, and it is certain that the German authorities are using these fraudulent passports to cover the trails of their secret agents.

The recent escape of the German officers who were interned at the Norfolk navy yard shows that the conspiracies were far-reaching, and that nothing was left undone to use every possible instrument in attaining the ends of the conspirators.

It would seem to be time to inquire of the German government if it is the intention to openly disregard all laws of decency as between nations in continuing the underhand work which was the occasion for the dismissal of Ambassador Dumba.

Ambassador von Bernstorff has repeatedly denied any connection with the lawless acts of his fellow countrymen. If there is anything in the official report of a German agent that has been described above, then Bernstorff is guilty of deliberate falsehood. If there is nothing in the report, then the German government is working through other agents than her own accredited ambassador to the United States.

The capture of four of the bomb conspirators, and the confession of two of them is sufficient to prove that the German secret service is actively engaged in plotting against the peace and dignity of a friendly nation. The men were in the pay of the German government, one of them is an officer in the German army, and the work they attempted to do was directly aimed at an enemy of Germany, in violation of all laws of neutrality.

It is believed that the main reason for fomenting disturbances in Mexico was the desire to keep our government so busy with our own affairs that we should have no time to look into Germany's crooked acts in this country.

But proof of the connection of the German officials with the conspirators should not be hard to obtain, and when it is proved that the German ambassador has wilfully falsified in order to shield himself and to cover the guilty acts of fellow countrymen, there should be no delay in demanding his recall, if indeed we do not break off all diplomatic relations.

The latest plan is to prohibit shipments of coal to Villa territory to prevent him from operating gold and silver mines in Chihuahua. But we had heard that Villa was making his last stand at Agua Prieta, and was preparing for a getaway to this country. How strange!

While we are considering the Oklahoma train robberies, we might take time to investigate the recent bank robberies in Texas. The latest one caused the death of a faithful employee who was shot while trying to prevent the robbery, and "no trace of the robbers has been discovered."

FIRST SPECIAL TRAINLOAD OF CALAMINE ARRIVED TODAY

TRAIN OPERATED INDEPENDENTLY BY BIG MINING CONCERN.

Are Preparing to Send Daily Special Trains to Border With Ore From Mines of the Corporation.

The first special trainload of ore from Mexico operated independently by a mining company, arrived in Nuevo Laredo this morning, the train consisting of ten carloads of calamine from the mines of the Compania Minerales y Metales at Higueras. This is the first direct special train operated by the company in some time, but as soon as additional rolling stock, locomotives and other equipment can be secured the trains will roll out of Mexico daily carrying the products of the mines to this city, from where they are shipped to the American refining plants.

Last week Mr. Ed. Denike, the representative of the Compania Minerales y Metales in Laredo, had crossed to the Mexican side a large locomotive which he purchased in Houston, and which is now being used in the transportation of the products of the mines of the company to the border.

The train arriving this morning in Nuevo Laredo was immediately sidetracked there pending the filing of manifests with the Laredo custom house. Soon afterwards the locomotive, attached to a string of empty freight cars, and some loaded with merchandise for the Compania Minerales y Metales, started on its return voyage toward Monterrey.

Until additional trains can be secured the company will use both their own transportation facilities and those of the National lines to move their products to the border and thence to their destination in the East.

SUBSTANTIAL STRUCTURE FOR COLD STORAGE PLANT

BEING ERECTED BY CONSUMERS ICE & FUEL CO. IN CITY.

Plant Will Be of Steel Frame, With Brick Walls, Concrete Floors and Roof and Very Durable.

What already provides proof of being the most substantial and durable reinforced steel and concrete structure in Laredo is now in course of construction on the southside of the plant of the Consumers Ice & Fuel Co. in the northwestern part of the city. It is the precooling or cold storage plant of the company and will be one of the most solid and strongest buildings of its character to be found anywhere in the state. It is of two stories in height and its dimensions are 50 feet wide and 75 feet long.

The foundation of this invulnerable structure is laid with several feet of concrete reinforced with iron. The superstructure is of steel frame, the channel columns being of structural steel 12 inches square, while the corner sills are 75 feet long and 28 inches in depth; all other beams and steel used as girders or cross pieces are 24 inches deep. This steel framework will provide enduring support to the thick and substantial brick walls and concrete floorings and roof that will be reinforced by steelwork.

The lower floor will be one large room 50x75 feet in size and will be used exclusively for ice storage. The second floor will be partitioned off into six compartments, the partitions between each room consisting entirely of cork walls. On this floor there will be a corridor, making all rooms easily accessible. This entire floor will be the cold storage plant proper and will afford precooling facilities for about twenty-four carloads of vegetables, although with some of the more bulky goods, such as lettuce and cabbage, there will be less cars accommodated in the cold storage rooms. An electric elevator will be installed on the west side of the building to be used in hoisting products for the cold storage compartments from the ground to the second floor. In the ice storage room there will be compressed air locks for lowering ice into the ice storage room from the manufacturing plant.

On the south end of the cold storage building there will be a loading platform for loading products from the cooling rooms onto the cars. Six cars can be accommodated at a time and an icing dock 250 feet long will provide facilities for icing cars for refrigeration purposes during and after loading. The work of construction on the plant is being done by Laredo artisans and it is under the superintendency of Frank Pfeuffer.

A REAL HUMAN INTEREST STORY

Ben Wilson in "The House With the Drawn Shades" Played Great Emotional Part That Left Impression.

Ben Wilson, playing the part of Judge Grant in the human-interest drama, "The House With the Drawn Shades," had a great emotional role last night at the Rex, and he did it credit. For the part he played was tinged with sympathetic environments.

Ben Wilson first appears as a graduate and a promising young lawyer. Then he woos and wins a fair lady. He has a young artist friend who is a frequent visitor at his home. Young Burns is too devoted to his work to indulge in society and his wife is entrusted to the artist to go to the opera—but they go to a way-side inn instead. The artist and woman are infatuated with each other—there the human interest story and woman's deception begins. They plot to run away and the scheme is carried out. The young lawyer enters his wife's room at midnight and finds a note that explains all. Then he makes that room his tomb and draws the shades of the windows—to keep out the sun light. Many years elapse and the erstwhile young lawyer is a court judge and one day a morphone fiend is brought before him charged with forging the name of a physician to an order for the terrible drug—the inexorable judge asks the question, "Are you guilty?" and as their furtive gaze meets the recognition takes place—husband and wife.

The wife is taken home while craving the drug, a physician is summoned and a few days later she is at that stage where the crisis in overcoming the drug has arrived—and she survives. The shades are then thrown up, the past is forgotten, the sunlight is admitted to the obscured room and a story, sad but true, has a beautiful ending. However, it is one of a thousand such stories that is devoid of pretension of some kind. The part of the wife was admirably carried out by Dorothy Phillips.

DON'T DUMP THE MARKET.

A good many farmers of thrifty proclivities in Texas and Louisiana, are producing a surplus of hay of various kinds upon which they naturally desire to realize early in the season. It has been observed, however, that the price is usually much higher in the winter, along toward spring, and sales much easier to make at the price. This would seem to indicate that the advice as to holding cotton to relieve the strain of the fall rush to sell, would apply equally well to the hay situation.

And the same may be said of stock peas. These are in demand mainly for seed, and naturally the planters hold off buying till nearly planting time. Hence it would seem to be good business for the growers, or the merchants who purchase from the growers, to not crowd the market unduly till it is ready for the stuff.

NO NEED OF HURRY.

A member of the advisory board for the navy criticizes the plan for on the ground that the time fixed for the realization of the program is too long and that, furthermore, there is no assurance that it will be executed by future congresses.

The Galveston News thinks there is no need of haste in carrying out the program. Says the News:

"It could not in any case be realized in time to be of any service for any exigency that may arise out of the present war. If we are destined to get into this war, we are pretty certain to get into it long before even the keel of the first battleship which this program contemplates could be laid."

And the News thinks that "Ten years at least must elapse before any of the nations now at war would be able to make on us. That we need a larger navy seems very evident to us. But that we are in need of working overtime to create it seems absurd."

This is just the point that the distinguished expert wants to make. Any plan done in a hurry is apt to be deficient in construction, and it is to avoid the rush of doing things when we really need them and to prevent the necessity of overtime that he wants the program altered.

What is probably not apparent to the News writer is that it takes at least a year and a half to draw the various plans for a battleship. It takes many months to make armor plate for a large vessel. It needs men working for months to prepare the various fittings to accord with the plans and the material cannot be picked up in the open market whenever needed.

When this was ended the resources of our great shipbuilding plants will be taxed to furnish the navies of the European countries, besides perhaps building vessels for some of the South American republics. The material manufactured by our armor plate mills will be greedily snapped up by foreign countries, unless it is contracted for by our government.

A change of program might give us time to build our navy without rush or worry, while the present program does not figure on the delays which may be unavoidable in drawing the plans, selecting the material on hand and ordering sufficiently in advance that which must be made in order that the ships may be built on schedule time.

The cost to the government of building its own vessels in navy yards is frequently one-third greater than that of the vessel built in commercial ship yards. This is because of the red tape, the higher cost of government-employed workmen, and the lack of driving on the part of bosses.

But even if the navy yards are to build a part of the proposed vessels, it will be necessary to secure the material. The plans for battleships and other naval vessels are always drawn by naval officers and employees. They are subjected to frequent changes as the work progresses. A year and a half is not too long to draw the various plans for hull, engines, pipe lines, electrical devices, etc.

The armor plate for a vessel must be forged to conform to the lines of the plans. Each piece must be measured accurately before being accepted. It takes days to make a single piece of armor plate, and if it is rejected by the inspectors it must be replaced by several days more of work.

Why not plan ahead for the construction of the vessels proposed, giving authorization for the construction, so that the plans may be at least begun and the material laid upon so as to have a certainty of the number proposed within the time mentioned?

Ten years is a long period to extend the building of a greater navy, and as long as it is proposed to increase that navy, why not start it at once, as soon as congress authorizes it, granting appropriations at each session of congress to pay for work completed and material furnished?

aiding the enemy.

It is evident that diplomacy can no further go than in the attempt to shield the German embassy and the German government from the results of Lieutenant Fay's confession that he was employed by the German secret service to cripple American munition plants and American or other ships carrying munitions to the allies.

It is announced that German Ambassador von Bernstorff declares that the group of which Fay is a member "had no connection with the German secret service or the German government."

Our state department promptly makes public this statement, as if the ambassador's mere word were sufficient in a case of such importance, which indicates that diplomatic courtesy is forced to sustain severe strains in the present complications.

Naturally it is going to be difficult to secure proof that Fay was actually in the employ of the German secret service. Whenever a spy is captured it is the policy of the government employing him to deny any connection with him, and there have been several instances in which a spy was executed without his government making any effort to secure his acquittal.

The proof of Fay's connection with the German government is all in the hands of the German authorities. But his confession, knowing that such connection would not release him from imprisonment or help him in any way to escape the consequences of his acts, would seem to be sufficient proof to warrant a demand upon the German government that it acquit itself of any guilty connection with the bomb conspirators.

Fay claims to be a loyal German, whose one desire was to do injury to the enemies of his country. He has no apparent desire to do injury to his country, and only on the latter supposition could his confession be considered as false.

The disposition of the German officials to do all in their power to injure their enemies has been demonstrated on several occasions. The country that could order the sinking of the Lusitania with several hundred innocent persons aboard; that could execute a woman simply because she was English, although she had given her services to relieve the sufferings of German soldiers; that could support a German who made the United States his headquarters for inflicting injury upon the Canadians—such a nation is not above repudiating its agents when to acknowledge them would result in loss of prestige, if not of friendship with a powerful neutral.

The fact that no further evidence connecting Fay with the German government can be found is no proof that he is not guilty as confessed. It merely proves that from the powerful secret service organization of Germany there is little chance of any other government deriving information save by the same methods as are used by the Wilhelmstrasse bureau.

Our secret service is very efficient. It has discovered thousands of criminals in all walks of life, and has convicted many of them. But when it goes up against an organization of criminals that is backed by the imperial government of Germany, which in addition is aided by the diplomatic secrecy of our own government, it is not likely that the criminals will be unearthed by any methods at its disposal.

The aura that surrounds a foreign diplomat is sufficient to blind the more detective whose efforts have heretofore been exerted in running down a counterfeiter or a postoffice thief. And the sign "No thoroughfare" is frequently encountered in the devious maze of diplomatic relations.

All the same, the bomb conspirators should, and perhaps will, receive the full punishment of the law. The pity is that their august masters cannot at the same time receive what is due them for insolently interfering in the affairs of a friendly nation.

King George was thrown from his horse when the animal reared and was severely bruised. It is evident that during his naval career he was not a member of the Horse Marines.

The usual fun along the Rio Grande for the Mexican bandits is about to be cut short. The report is that the Carrancistas have received orders to pursue them until they are all killed or captured. On this side of the river they will be assured against capture.

A French priest preached a sermon that was opposed to public policy and then excommunicated those who testified when his case was before the examining magistrate. He certainly had a monopoly.

Morgan has been operated on for appendicitis, but his recovery is expected. He evidently is doing all that he can to break into society. Only those who lack appendices are supposed to be in the Four Hundred now.

MARTIN LUTHER DAY IN CHURCHES.

New York, Oct. 20.—Tomorrow is Martin Luther Day in the Lutheran Churches throughout the world, in observance of the 398th anniversary of the beginning of the Reformation, on the day when Luther nailed his famous theses to the door of his church at Wittenberg. There will be no joint celebration this year, but plans are under way for a roving observance of the 400th anniversary of Luther's action two years hence. There is some talk of applying to Congress for a site in Washington upon which to erect a Luther arch that shall commemorate not so much the Luther fame, nor even the beginnings of religious liberty, but the start of an era in which Christian education, Christian morals and an open Bible were parts of awakened lives.

A Closed System Needs Attention. Are you bilious, dizzy and listless? Dr. King's New Life Pills taken at once seize upon constipation and starts the bowels moving naturally and easily. Moreover it acts without griping. Neglect of a clogged system often leads to most serious complications. Poisonous matters and a body poorly functioning need immediate attention. If you wish to wake up tomorrow morning happy in mind and entirely satisfied, start your treatment tonight. 25c a bottle. (Adv.)

THREE MADERO BROTHERS DEPART FOR MEXICO TODAY

RETURN TO THEIR OLD HOME AT PARRAS AFTER LONG ABSENCE

Maderos Are Brothers of the Late President of the Republic and Have Been Living in This Country.

Julio, Evaristo and Gabriel Madero, brothers of the late President Francisco Madero, and who have been making their homes in the United States for the past two years, or since the Huerta-Carranza revolution began following the overthrow of the Madero government, left Laredo this morning for Saitillo, accompanied by members of their families, and after a short stop there will proceed to their old home at Parras, state of Coahuila.

During their residence in the United States the Maderos have resided in various sections of the country, ranging from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from New York to the Texas border, but after all, to them, there is no place like old Mexico, the land of sunshine, happiness, and content; when peace serene and order pervade throughout the land, and for which there are now bright prospects.

Julio Madero, the elder of the three brothers leaving here for Saitillo today, was formerly a member of General Obregon's staff, and consequently stands in with the Carranza government.

Why Not Publish It?

When you want a fact to become generally known, the right way is to publish it. Mrs. Joseph Kallans, Peru, Ind., was troubled with belching, sour stomach and frequent headaches. She writes, "I feel it my duty to tell others what Chamberlain's Tablets have done for me. They have helped my digestion and regulated my bowels. Since using them I have been entirely well." EFFECTED ENTRANCE TO STORE.

But Just as They Got in Were Detected in the Act and Passersby Frightened Would-be Burglars.

Last night just about 7:30 o'clock, after they had effected an entrance into the rear of the store of Ferrara & Garza, at the corner of Lincoln street and Convent Avenue, two men were detected in the act of committing a robbery and passersby gave the alarm.

Finding that they had been discovered in their work the two men jumped a fence and fled, pursued by two cops, but these they succeeded in evading and made good their escape. Except for the fact that they were men, or dressed as such, there is no clue to their identity. They took nothing with them.

Coughs That Are Stopped!

Careful people see that they are stopped. Dr. King's New Discovery is a remedy of tried merit. It has held its own on the market for 46 years. Youth and old age testify to its soothing and healing qualities. Pneumonia and lung troubles are often caused by delay of treatment. Dr. King's New Discovery stops hacking coughs and relieves the gripe tendencies. Money back if it fails. 50c. and $1.00. (Adv.)

All Saints Day.

When one looks at the calendar of saints' days, either of the Anglican or Roman communion, one finds this and that notable character memorialized, but under the church's definition of a saint we find ourselves honoring our sainted mothers, blood relatives or friends, whether dead or alive, provided they are endeavoring or have tried to live close to their Maker and do His will. "All Saints," then, is particularly the Christian people's day in order that the faithful hosts of the Church expectant and the Church militant may be properly remembered, whether or not their names are found in the church's printed lists.

"Fatherhood" Tomorrow.

How a man was brought to a realization of his responsibilities by the advent of a little son is beautifully told in "Fatherhood," to be shown at the Rex tomorrow. The production is by Hobart Bosworth, which is an indication of its worth, and the play is said to be both realistic and convincing.

A NOTRE DAME LADY'S APPEAL.

To all knowing sufferers of rheumatism, whether muscular or of the joints, sciatica, lumbago, backache, pains in the kidneys or neuralgia pains, to write to her for a home treatment which has repeatedly cured all of these tortures. She feels it her duty to send it to all sufferers FREE. You cure yourself at home as thousands will testify—no change of climate, being necessary. This simple discovery handles the acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. SPOOKS, WITCHES, GOBLINS TO PERAMBULATE TONIGHT

HALLÖWE'EN WILL BE OBSERVED WITH USUAL CEREMONY.

The Girls Will Look in Mirrors For Likenesses of Their Future Husbands; Woe to the Disappointed.

The festival of Hallowe'en, which falls on the last night of October annually, this year proper comes on Sunday evening, but will be observed tonight instead in advance. It was on Hallowe'en night, many years ago, that Tom O'Shanter made his memorable ride at midnight in eluding the witches. Today modern people observe Hallowe'en in their own accustomed way.

Witches, sorcerers, and hobgoblins, screaming hags of the night, bearded monsters of mountain caverns and hideous demons of the nether world are coming. They will ride in on broomsticks, sail in on magic carpets, and spring unexpectedly from the earth, accompanied by clouds of sulphurous vapors.

Every year on Hallowe'en, so the legend goes, the lid which is ordinarily clamped tightly on the uncanny witches, banshees, spooks, and ghosts, is lifted. Just why it is lifted has not been explained, but there are those who know it is lifted because they have seen "em. To few persons is given the doubtful treat of viewing such sights, and they are usually old-time black mummies or wrinkled old black "uncles" and the tales of what they saw are usually told in chimney corners on cold nights when the "white chillun" rather about to hear a real, "honest to goodness" ghost story.

Many are the sights which may be seen if you only know where to look for them. The black mummies do not know all the secrets, although they know many. It is a known fact which will be vouched for by many a young girl that if she gets up just at midnight and looks into her mirror without turning on the light she will see the face of her future husband. If she sees nothing, she may as well turn her "hope box" over to her sister or some friend, for she is doomed to die an old maid. This has been tried time and time again and one girl knows a girl whose sister got up at midnight and saw nothing in the mirror. That sister is now a hopeless old maid.

If any young girl does not wish to see the face of her future husband just yet, but does not mind a few tender reminders of him, she can place the mirror under her pillow. That night he will come to her in her dreams. But woe unto the day if her sleep is dreamless, because she must pass through life husbandless.

These harmless little entertainments are for the girls. Hallowe'en offers many, too, for the boys. There are all sorts of noise-making, sleep-wrecking apparatus which have been invented by conscienceless geniuses which other conscienceless persons offer for sale at this time of the year for their special benefit. The youngsters can form gangs and go about the streets yelling, blowing horns and beating tin cans and get away with it. It is one day in the year when the small boy is allowed to give full play to his mischievous disposition by the police, provided he does not go too far.

WILL BE HERE MONDAY.

And now that the subject is Wild West— But the subject wasn't Wild West. In fact it wasn't anything. But that doesn't make any difference. This is a circus story, concerning the Wild West features of the Sells-Floto Circus and Buffalo Bill's Original Wild West which is coming here Monday, November 1, and it might as well start that way as any other. So to repeat: now that the subject is Wild West, there enters the subject also of the men and women Col. William Frederick Cody (Buffalo Bill) will bring with him when he comes to town with the circus.

For Buffalo Bill, scout of many a year ago, did some more scouting last winter. Into the Bad Lands of South Dakota he went far up into the Big Horn Basin and past his ranch at Cody, then out to the western ranges of Wyoming. When he returned to Denver he brought with him the announcement that this summer would see real wild west beneath a circus canvas. For Col. Cody had sought out the men and women he knew to be the best, he had sought out the most picturesque Indians possible, he had sought out the most fearless riders, the champion ropers and the most daring cowboys—and then had prevailed upon them, for one season at least, to live the life of the circus.

And so it is that when the Sells-Floto and Buffalo Bill Circus comes here, there will come also Hugh Clark, Jim Forest, Frank Boden, Mary Walters, "Red" Kelley and many other representative of the ranks who can do anything from roping four horses at a gallop to tying knots in a lariat. As for riding the "buckers"—there will be men with the Sells-Floto Circus this year who will turn hand-springs on their backs and then grin and ask for something hard to do. Of course the wild west features are to be included in the regular performance of the show, under the supervision of Col. Cody. Also, they will be in the parade, which is to come at 10:30 o'clock, every morning and which will be led by Buffalo Bill himself.

BEGINS MONDAY MORNING

Shipments of Corn, Cloth, Sugar and Paraffine Comprised Bulk of Exports Yesterday Afternoon.

WILL BE LAWFUL TO KILL ANYTHING IN GAME EXCEPT DUCKS

Exportations to Mexico through this port still continue lively, although they are not as heavy as they should be, on account of the fact that the National Lines is already taxed to its capacity to handle the articles being sent southward along its route. The following exports were crossed from Laredo to the Mexican side yesterday afternoon: Eight thousands bushels (eight cars) of corn, 18,000 yards cotton cloth, 37,000 pounds of sugar and 12,400 pounds of paraffine.

Besides the exports mentioned above, there are several carloads of provisions and articles of general merchandise being crossed daily from Laredo to Nuevo Laredo, and there loaded on to freight cars and carried to its destination in Central Mexico.
